Pennsylvania Greets Her Brave Tenth Regiment at Pittsburgh—One of the Greatest Demonstrations of Patriotism Known to the Country. Strong Declaration of the Government's Policy-Undisputed Sovereignty Must Prevail.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28.-With cannon booming, bells clanging, whistles shrieking, flags waving and mighty cheers, in which hundreds of thousands of throats united, the brave Tenth Regiment was welcomed home after a period of gallant service in the Philippines.

The reception tendered to the returning soldiers will always be remembered in this city as one of the greatest demonstrations of patriotism that has ever taken place in this country. A fund of $55,000, donated by the generous citizens of Pittsburgh and the surrounding towns, permitted the committee who had the affair in charge to make lavish preparations for the home-coming, and nothing was left undone that would show the "Fighting Tenth" how well their services in a foreign land were appreciated by the residents of their native State. The only thing lacking to make the day one of supreme happiness was the absence of the brave and well-beloved Col. Hawkins, who led the boys in all of their battles and shared in all of their sufferings, but who was denied the privilege of marching at their head when they returned home to receive the plaudits of a grateful people.

The day opened-threatening, and lowering clouds hung over the city, but long before the arrival of the trains carrying the troops the clouds had disappeared and the sun was shining brightly. The crowds that lined the streets along the route of the parade from the parks in Allegheny to the reviewing stand in Schenley Park was almost beyond count-Good judges estimated the number at not less than 500,000. This is not regarded as too high. Besides the fact that the soldiers, fresh from the scene of victory, were to be in the parade, which, in itself, was a memorable sight, it was also known that the President and Mrs. McKinley, Maj.-Gen. Merritt, Maj.-Gen. Francis V. Greepe and other prominent national and State officials were in the city.

The arrangements which had been made for the parade could not have been improved upon. Although the people from the surrounding counties began literally "pouring" into the city soon after the dawn of day, the police had made such preparations that this influx did not create any throng so as to interfere with the line of march. From the point of starting, in Allegheny, over two thousand officers, enrolled for the occasion from the different municipal departments of the two cities, were located along the line at certain intervals, and in this manner the immense concourse of onlookers was kept well under control.

The decorations of the streets and buildings were overwhelmingly rich and gorgeous, and the five miles over which the parade took place was practically an unbroken line of flags, flowers, festoons and bunting.

The reviewing stand, on which were President McKinley and his staff of notables, in Schenley Park, was a magnificent work of art, composed of silk plush and damask, all blended tastefully in the colors of the national emblem.

The reception of the Philippine heroes began early in the morning at New Brighton, Pa., where a committee of prominent citizens welcomed them as soon as they had school bonds ordered....Third-street tunnel work to be rushed....How to crossed the borders of the State.

After brief exercises and a hearty breakfast, tendered by the citizens of New Brighton, the regiment was rushed into Allegheny. The train came in three sections, and immediately the soldiers disembarked for the line of march to Schenley Park, where the exercises were taken up. The parade moved in the following order:

It was 5 o'clock when the head of the column reached Schenely Park. After reviewing the parade, President McKinley proceeded to the Music Pavilion, where the exercises were held. Seats had been provided for friends and elatives of the members of the Tenth Infantry in the Music Pavilion, but these were filled long before the exer-cises began, and thousands were unable to secure even standing room withn hearing distance

After music by the Economy Band, Maj. Lee Smith called the meeting to order, and Rev. I. N. Boyle, D.D., delivered the invocation. Gov. William A. Stone was then introduced as chairman of the meeting, and delivered an address of welcome in behalf of the

STERLING AMERICAN ADDRESS. At the conclusion of Gov. Stone's re-marks, President McKinley was intro-duced, and after the applause had

"Our troops represented the truth and conscience, the pure patriotism of their country. Whether in Cuba, Porto Rico or the Philippines, or at home awaiting orders, they did their full duty, and all sought the post of greatest peril. They never faltered. The Eighth Army Corps in the Philippines has made a proud and exceptional record. Privileged to be mustered out in April, when the ratifications of the treaty of peace were exchanged, the officers and men did not claim the privilege—they declined it. They vol-untarily remained in the service, and declared their purpose to stay until their places could be filled by new levies, and longer, if the Government needed their services, and they understood it was not to be in camp or gar-rison, free from danger, but on the battle line, where exposure and death confronted them, and where both have their arms in the presence of an enemy whom they had just emancipated from Spanish rule, and who should have been our firmest friends. They fur-You, and your brave comrades engaged t been our names and so on other fields of conflict, have en- nished an example of devotion and so on other fields of conflict, have enrecord of American valor. They have won not alone the gratitude of the American Government and the people, but have achieved for themselves and their descendants an imperishable distinction. They may not fully appreciate, and the country may not appreciate the heroism of their conduct and its important support to the govern-ment. I think I do appreciate it, and so I am here to express it. "The mighty army of volunteers and regulars, numbering over 250,000, which last year responded to the call of the government with an alacrity without precedent or parallel, by the terms of their enlistment were to be mustered out, with all of the regulars above 27,-000 men, when peace with Spain was effected. Peace brought us the Philip-pines by treaty concession from Spain. The Senate of the United States ratifled the treaty. Every step taken was in obedience to the requirements of the Constitution. It became our territory, and is ours, as much as the Louisiana purchase, or Texas, or Alaska. "A body of insurgents, in no sens epresenting the great sentiment of the people of the islands, disputed our lawful authority, and, even before the ratification of the treaty by the American Senate, were attacking the very forces who fought for and secured their freedom. This was the situation in April, 1899, the date of the exchange of the ratifications—with only 27,000 regulars subject to the unquestioned di-Porto Rico, or invalided at home, after their severe campaign in the tropics Even had they been available, it would have required months to transport them to the Philippines. Practically a new army had to be created. These loyal volunteers in the Philippines said: 'We will stay until the Government can organize an army at home and transport them to the seat of hostilities.' "They did stay, cheerfully, uncomplainingly, patriotically. The fered and sacrificed; they and fell; they drove back and punished the rebels who resisted Federal authority, and who, with force tacked the sovereignty of the United States in its newly-acquired territory. Without them, then and there, we would have been practically helpless on land, our flag would have had its first stain, and the American name its first ignominy. The brilliant victories in the army and navy in the bay and the city of Manila would have been won in vain; our obliga-tions to civilization would have remained temporarily unperformed: chaos would have reigned, and what-ever government there was would have been by the will of one man and not by the consent of the governed.

"Who refused to sound the retreat? Who stood in the breach when others weakened? Who resisted the sugges-tion of the unpatriotic that they should come home? Let me call the roll of the regiments and battalion that deserve to be perpetuated in the nation's annals. Their action was not nation's annais. Their action was not a sudden impulse under excitement, but a deliberate determination to sustain, at the cost of life, if need be, the honor of their government, and the authority of its flag: First Callfornia, California Artillery, First Colorado, First Idaho, Fifty-first Iowa, Twentieth Kansas, Thirteenth Minneste First Manager Twentern Annas, First Nebraska, First North Dakota, Nevada Cavalry, Second Oregon, Tenth Pennsylvania, First South Dakota, First Tennessee, Utah Artillery, First Washington, First Wyoming, Wyoming Battery,

"To these must be added about 4000 enlisted men of the regular army, who were entitled to their discharge under the peace proclamation of April 11, 1899, the greater portion of whom participated in the engagements of the Eighth Corps and are still performing arduous duties in the field. forming arduous duties in the forgotten.

archipelago was made free and the foreign subjects were given the right of

of the treaty with the Sultan of Sult, the authorities purpose to allow matters to continue as they have been under Spanish dominion.

By the treaty of peace with Spain, the United States pledged itself to the

that the United States would for ten years from the date of the exchange of the ratification of the treaty admit Spanish ships and merchandise to the ports of the Philippine Islands on the same terms as merchandise of the United States.

In explaining this article to the Spanish Commission Chairman Day of the American commission said: "The declaration that the policy of the United States in the Philippines will be that of an open door to the world's commerce necessarily implies that the offer to place Spanish merchandise and vessels on the same footing as American is not intended to be exclusive. But the offer to give Spain that privilege for a term of years is intended to secure it to her for a certain period by special treaty stipulation, whatever might be at any time the general policy of the United States."

Under this declaration, even if the treaty of Great Britain and Germany with Spain relative to the Sulus is abrogated, their interests, except in the matter of fisheries, are not affected.

There is a well-defined rumor among the men of the regiment to the effect that September 1 will be the date for mustering out. No date has been set, however, but if the work be properly attended to, somewhere about August 31 will be the time. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.1 LONDON, Aug. 29.—[By Atlantic Cable.] The Cape Town corre-spondent of the Daily Chronicle says British troops will be immediately concentrated at Laing's Neek and Mafeking, and it is believed that the British programme will be to surrour the Transvaal and then to negotiate a

According to the Daily Mail's cor respondent at Cape Town, the belief s still entertained there that the British government is opposed to extreme measures, and it is reported that resident Kruger is so well aware of this that he has just cabled counter nanding conditional orders for neat supplies.

CAPE AFFAIRS.

Premier Schreiner Says He Know There Will Be No War.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

CAPE TOWN, Aug. 29.-[By African Cable.] The Cape House of Assembly is again debating the question of the transit of arms intended for the Orange Free State, and presumably the Transvaal.

William P. Schreiner, the Premier, personally appealed to his followers to refrain from answering the criticism of the opposition, lest they should prove words of ill-feeling.

The entire opposition rose to sup-port the motion for adjournment made by Rt. Hon. John Gordon Sprigg, the by Rt. Hon. John Gordon Sprigs, the former Premier. Sir John asked the Premier what action the Cabina proposed taking in the matter. He said that the recent speech of the British Secretary of State for the Colonles, Joseph Chamberlain, at Birmingham, Eng., had forced all to the conclusion that South Africa was on the brink of war, unless the Transvaal met the British demands. In his opinion, the Cape government ought to follow the example of Portugal at Delagos Bay and refuse to permit the transit of arms as long as the crisis lasted.

After Sir John Gordon Sprigs had finished, a pause occurred, the House waiting for the Premier's reply. Finally Schreiner rose and declared that, under the customs conventions, the Orange Free State was justified in importing arms through Cape Colony, and he did not intend to tear up that convention, knowing, as he did, that there would be no war.

"In the event of war." he said. "T

[A. P. EARLY MORNING REPORT.] NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The directors of the Republic Iron and Steel Com pany of Chicago will hold their first quarterly meeting here today. Randolph S. Warner, president, came from Chicago last night. With him were George D. Wick, first vice-president; Silas J. Llewellyn, secretary; George M. Bard, fourth vice-president, and H. S. Rubens, general counsel.

Rubens said last night that the meeting today has no special significance, despite rumors to the contrary. It is only a regular quarterly meeting of the directory, he said, and the company pany of Chicago will hold their first directory, he said, and the company has no intention just now of acquiring any more iron, mining or other properties. Reports are current that at this meeting the company will consummate a number of "deals" by which its scope and holders would be very materially increased. These reports are denied, however, by both Mr. Llewellyn and Mr. Rubens.

however, by both Mr. Llewellyn and Mr. Rubens.

The Republic Iron and Steel Company was organized in this city May 11, 1899, with a capital of $55,000,000, which includes $25,000,000 of 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock, and $30,000,000 of common stock. It started out with a cash working capital of $6,500,000, and with no indebtedness or fixed charges. The concerns included in the consolidation numbered thirty-six. Thirty of these are rolling mills, and the rest are mostly mining companies, though the trust has since acquired other kinds of properties, such as bridge companies.

Sebastian Storck, the secretary of the association, and George Loeser, the vice-president, are firmly convinced that the slaughter-house enterprise will be a success, and that the butchers, organized as they are, and with the capital at their command which has been promised, will be able to fight the trust to advantage.

In contradiction of the assertion of the members that the price of cattle is very high, and that good beeves are worth from $65 to $75 in the Chicago market, Wagner pointed to an advertisement of a North Dakota cattle company, which stated that range cattle were bringing from $40 to $50 per head on the hoof from buyers in the Chicago market, and that three-year-old steers on the range could be made ready for the market at a cost of not more than $25 a head.

FIT WORDS.

in the engagement of May 1 in Ma-nila Bay whose terms of service had previously expired, continuing on previously expired, continuing on duty quite a year after that action. "For the men of the army and navy we have only honor and gratitude. The world will never know the restraint of our own soldiers-their self-control un der the most exasperating conditions. For weeks subjected to the insults and duplicity of the insurgent leaders, they preserved the status quo, remembering that they were under an order from their government to sacredly observe the terms of the protocol in letter and spirit, and avoid all conflict except in defense, pending the negotiations of the treaty of peace. They were not the aggressors. They did not begin hostilities against the insurgents pending the ratification of the treaty of peace in the Senate, great as was their justi-fication, because their orders from Washington forbade it.

Washington forbade it.
"I take all the responsibility for that direction. Otis only executed the orders of his government, and the soldiers, unof ms government, and the souths, and of great provocation to strike back, obeyed. The first blow was struck by the insurgents. Our kindness was reciprocated with cruelty, our mercy with a Mauser. The flag of truce was in-voked only to be dishonored. Our soldiers were shot down when ministering to wounded Filipinos. Our humanit, was interpreted as weakness, our for Our humanity bearance as cowardice. They assailed our sovereignty, and there will be no useless parley—no pause until the insurection is suppressed and American au hority is acknowledged and established

I will leave ation and eulogy. "Every one of the noble men, regulars and volunteers, soldiers and seamen, who thus signally served their country in its extremity, deserves the special recognition of Congress, and it will be to me an unfeigned pleasure to recommend for each of them a special medal of honor. While we give you hail and greeting from overflowing hearts, we lo not forget the brave men who remain, and those who have gone for-ward to take your places, and those other brave men who have so promptly volunteered, crowding each other to go to the front, to carry forward to sucessful completion the work you so no oly began. Our prayers go with them and with more men and munitions, if required for the speedy suppression of the rebellion, the establishment of peace and tranquility, and a govern-ment under the undisputed sovereignty of the United States, a government which will do justice to all and at once encourage the best efforts and aspira-tions of these distant people and the highest development of the rich and fertile lands.

"The government to which you gave your loyalty welcomes you to your homes. With no blot or stain upon your record, the story of your unselfish services to country and to civilization will be to men who take your places at the front and on the firing line, and to ruture generations, an example of patriotism and an inspiration to duty."

in eloquent address, and, on behalf o an eloquent address, and, on behalf of the citizens of Western Pennsylvania, presented to each of the commissioned officers a sword, the chaplain with a loving cup, and every man in the regiment a beautiful medal. The presents were received by Col. Barnett or sehalf of the officers and men.

Gen. Wesley Merritt was then intro-duced, and made an address on behalf of the army. After the benediction by Rev. Dr. A H. Lucas the regiment was marched to the park race track, where a sumptuous repast was served, and then the troops were finally dismissed. The volunteers were expected in Pittsburgh at 9:30 o'clock this morning, but were delayed on the road nearly five hours, and did not reach New Brighton, Pa., until after 1 o'clock. A committee of Pennsylvanians met them there, and welcomed the regiment to the State.

The train stopped at New Brighton for breakfast, and at 1 o'clock started for Pittsburgh. President McKinley was notified of the delay, and did not leave the residence of Mr. Pitcairn until nearly 1 o'clock, when he entered a carriage and was driven to Allegheny where he took his place in the parade. An immense crowd has thronged the streets since early morning, and much disappointment was felt at the long de-streets since early morning, and induction disappointment was felt at the long delay.

The feature of the afternoon was the address of Edward Q. Keasebey of Newark, N. J., entitled "New Jersey and the Great Corporations." Keasebey reviewed briefly the growth of the tendency to centralization in business and the opposition which has come from the people to so-called "trusts." Referring to New Jersey's part in the growth of heavily capitalized corporations. Keasebey said:

"Thirteen hundred and thirty-six corporations were organized under the laws of New Jersey between January 1 and August 1 of the present year, with an authorized capital of over $2,000,000,000 and in a list of the existing industrial corporations naving stock and bonds exceeding $10,000,000, sixtyone were organized in New Jersey as against sixty in all the other States."

Then followed a brief history of corporation laws of the State of New Jersey.

"I think," said he, "that a careful exporation laws of the State of New Jersey.

"I think," said he, "that a careful examination of the course of legislation and judicial decision in New Jersey will show that in dealing with the orgenization and regulation of corporations she has followed a consistent, definite and progressive policy."

Continuing, the speaker said: "The mere fact that a contract is intended for the purpose of avoiding competition does not make it illegal. To prevent competition may incidentally work a restraint of trade, but it is of the essence of freedom of trade that men shall not be compelled to carry on business unless they wish to. They cannot be compelled to compete against their will."

In conclusion, Keasebey declared that

to the Island of Jersey, and as to his arrest.

The first witness today was M. Paray-Javal, the draughtsman, whose evidence was interrupted on Saturday by the adjournment of court. M. Paray-Javal was called by the defense to refute the system by which M. Bertillon, chief of the Anthropometric Department of the Paris Prefecture of Police, last week attempted to prove that the prisoner wrote the famous bordereau in a disguised hand and by means of a key word, "interest." and that it could not have been written by Esterhazy, although the document was in a handwriting resembling that of Esterhazy. With the aid of a blackboard, witness demonstrated the fallacy of M. Bertillon's calculations, and criticised the latter's unfairness in not subjecting Esterhazy's handwriting to the same tests as the prisoner's writing. At the same time, the draughtsman declared that even if M. Bertillon had done so the results would not have proved anything.

After two witnesses has testified and argued against M. The latter wishes to reply, but Col. Jouaust declined to allow the specialist to go over his evidence again, taking the ground that the evidence would never end if every expert did the same.

An amusing scene followed. M. Bertillon pleaded that he had a personal statement to make, and mounted the platform, but he had hardly uttered half a dozen words when Col. Jouaust saw he was merely going over his evidence, and, to the great satisfaction of the audience, curtly told the specialist to leave the platform, which he did, discomfited.

M. Tessioneres's testimony against Dreyfus followed. Then M. Charavay, he expert, who had previously declared Dreyfus was the author of the bordereau, was called to the bar. Col. Jouaust then announced that M. de Freycinet, who resigned as Minister of War May 6, this year, and who was succeded by M. M. Paray-Javal resumed his testimony this morning, and with the assistance of a blackboard proceeded to show the fallacy of the calculations of M. Bertillon had done so, the results would not have proved anything. The witness, however, insisted that M. Bertillon had a vicious method in only making a partial experiment. in only making a partial experiment.

Continuing, M. Paray-Javal proceeded to show that the geometric regularities alleged by M. Bertillon did not in reality exist. He pointed out a number of irregularities in the handwriting of the bordereau, and said the same trregularities were particularly writing of the bordereau, and said the same irregularities were particularly noticeable in Esterhazy's calligraphy. He contended that the alleged irregularity of the key word, "interest," was only approximate, and proceeded to illustrate his arguments on the blackboard, showing that all M. Bertillon's proofs applied equally to Esterhazy as well as to Dreyfus.

M. Paray-Javal declared that M. Bertillon's measurement of the word "in-

M. Paray-Javal declared that M. Bertillon's measurement of the word "interest," which served as the basis of the whole system, was entirely false, and therefore M. Bertillon's entire system "falls to the ground and no longer exists." [Great sensation.]

This witness, who had awakened the interest of his hearers, maintained that the bordereau could not have been traced, adding that it was an utter impossibility. He then proceeded to illustrate why this was the case, and to prove the falseness of M. Bertillon's deductions.

trate why this was the case, and to prove the falseness of M. Bertillon's deductions.

In conclusion, M. Paray-Javal said he thought M. Bertillon was a very intelligent man, but that his system was false, and he, the witness, was convinced that only self-esteem prevented M. Bertillon from admitting his error.

M. Bernard, an inspector of mines, who took high honors at the Polytechnic School, who followed M. Paray-Javal at the witness bar, said he appeared to refute a portion of M. Bertillon's evidence, which was based on false calculations. As a matter of fact, he added, it was on such a basis that the whole system rested. Witness said he was greatly surprised that M. Bertillon thought fit to have recourse to psychological arguments to prove, first, that the bordereau was fabricated; second, that the methods which might have been employed in writing certain words were such as to constitute proof against Dreyfus.

M. Bernard also said he was astonished at the fact that M. Bertillon had undertaken to account for the shape of letters and the space between words. There was not 1% millimetres, as alleged by M. Bertillon, but 1.56. Moreover, the writing of the bordereau was natural and rhythmic, which, with its character and size, showed it was not written by a long or short-sighted person. character and size, showed it was not written by a long or short-sighted person. While pointing out a fault in the application of the system of Bertillon, Bernard aroused merriment by remarking M. Bertillon's system could never have been useful, seeing that it enabled the witness to show that the bordereau was a natural and not a fabricated decement.

Bertillon's system it will show certain peculiarities, which could not be found upon the examination of 50,000,000 other documents. M. Bertillon would, therefore, say the document was fabricated. But he would be wrong, for I borrowed the page from a report written by M. Bertillon himself."

M. Trissonieres followed. He said he adhered in all respects to his report dated October 29, 1894, in which he expressed the opinion that the bordereau was the work of the writer of the documents seized at the prisoner's residence. For the purpose of comparison, the witness lengthily criticised the bordereau letter by letter, pointing out resemblances to the prisoner's handwriting. In conclusion, M. Thissonieres said he thought it was impossible to find more tangible reasons than those which induced in him the belief which he hoped the court would share. [Sensation.] Replying to the court, the witness said he had not noticed the prisoner's handwriting was illegible, and he had never seen the document dictated to Dreyfus. The copy of the bordereau made by Dreyfus was then handed to the witness, who declared it had never been given to him for purposes of comparison. [Sensation.] The witness added that he would require three days to give an opinion upon it. He could not conclude his examination on the spot. He must have time.

Here a member of the court-martial, giving the result of the examination of the bordereau, remarked: "The letter 'I' is always isolated, even at the beginning of words." To this M. Trissonieres replied that this peculiarity was also found in the prisoner's handwriting.

When he was invited to reply to the witness, M. Dreyfus said that M. Trissonieres's remarks seemed to him "quite incorrest." and that in order to reply properly he (the prisoner) must have the documents under his eyes. As regards the criticism on the subject of the paragraphing, Dreyfus added: "I beg to reply that one does not make a fresh paragraph except when beginning a new idea. Every time I begin a new idea in anything I write, I make a paragraph."

The prisoner, in conclusion, asked the court to request the witness, before he retired, to produce the documents furnished to him for comparison, of which the defense had no knowledge. Col. Jouaust replied: "Certainly."

M. Trissonieres replied: "Graning. The witness, but (tu

After a brief suspension of the session the court resumed hearing testimony, and M. Charavay, reporter on ancient manuscripts, was called to the witness bar. His deposition was so inaudible that he was requested to speak up. "In 1894," said M. Charavay, "I with two colleagues, though acting underseparate instructions was commissioned to examine the bordereau and a number of documents for comparison, unsigned and in different handwritings. I examined first the latter documents and by the process of elimination, fixed upon one resembling the bordereau. I was then formished with specimens of the ham." writing in question, but was not cold the name of the writer. I asked if the document could be regarded as genuine, and was told the place whence it emanated, which could not be mentioned by me, and which could leave no doubt in regard to its value. I make this remark because I think it explains my opinion, for I could not consider a document to be of this one's nature, which was not marked by a certain dissimilitudes. I was careful to note in my report.

"I must inform the court that in view of the fact that handwriting of the bordereau as the handwriting of the bordereau as the handwriting of Dreyfus has since been submitted to me. I see the submitted of the property of the property of the property of the handwriting of the bordereau as the handwriting of the bordereau as the handwriting of Dreyfus has since been submitted to me. I see the property of the property o that those two handwritings resemble the bordereau.

"I should, however, point out one of the typical dissimilarities upon which I laid stress, but not writing of the bordereau and the documents submitted for comparison, namely, that the double "s" is not found between the bordereau and the new handwriting. In other words, the double "s" in the bordereau is found in Esterhazy's writing."

bordereau is found in Esterhazy's writing."

After repeating the evidence he gave the Court of Cassation, M. Charavoy declared it was the new element, the handwriting of Esterhazy, which led him to declare, he did not adhere to his conclusions in 1894. In conclusion, M. Charavay energetically protested ogainst 'Gen. Mercier's accusations, adding that what convinced him that he had made a mistake in 1894 was the publication of Esterhazy's etters, the discovery of the Henry forgery, the inquiry of the Court of Cassation and Esterhazy's confession. The conscience of the witness compelled him to say that in 1894 he was misled by similarity in handwriting.

that in 1894 he was missed by similarity in handwriting.

"It is a great relief to my considerate," M. Charavay added, "to be able to say before you and before him who is the victim of my mistake, that the bordereau is not the work of Dreyfus, but of Esterhazy." An immense sensation was caused in court by this statement.

statement.

Replying to Col. Jouaust, the witness said that the mere examination of the bordereau and the documents presented for comparison were sufficient to convince him that the bordereau was not written by Dreyfus.

The prisoner, on being asked the customary questions, requested M. Charavay to give further particulars as to the reasons which led hmi-to modify his opinions in regard to the writer of the bordereau, whereupon he witness entered into a lengthy technical detail. He explained how he found unmistakable resemblances between the bordereau and Esterhazy's writing.

M. Pelletier, another expert, prefaced his evidence by saying he desired to make a definite statement on the point on which he was at entire disagreement with Gen. Mercler. The latter had testified that the witness refused to use certain documents submitted to him for comparison win the other experts, and said he had been led to regard M. Pelletier's work with some suspicion, because of certain incidents in which M. Pelletier, being summoned to appear simultaneously in two different courts, had written to both, exin which M. Pelletier, being summoned to appear simultaneously in two different courts, had written to both, excusing himself on the ground of attendance at the other.

Gen. Mercier declared this made him suspicious of M. Pelletier's report in favor of Dreyfus, inferring that his failure to comply with the summons of the examining magistrates, in Nowember, 1894, was connected with his report, whereas, his report, the witness pointed out, was handed in on October 26.

report, whereas, his report, the witness pointed out, was handed in on October 26.

"I have only to oppose facts to Gen. Mercler's inferences," said M. Pelletier. "On October 22 I was entrusted with the verification in question. I handed in my report October 26, and it was only in November that I was summomed to undergo cross-examination on a complaint lodged by the military authorities. Gen. Mercier, in short, had not the slightest reason to suspect the conclusions which I had reached."

After replying to a question or two from the court, M. Pelletier continued: "After settling this personal matter, there remains nothing but to maintain in their entirety the conclusions I reached to the effect that there is no likeness between the writing of the bordereau and that of the prisoner."

Continuing, the witness said that after a fresh superficial examination of the Esterhazy and Dreyfus writings, he expressed the belief that the bordereau could only be ascribed to Esterhazy.

M. Couard, the official expert in the

M. Couard, the official expert in the Esterhazy case in 1897, then testified that he was instructed by Maj. Ravary to expertly examine the bordereau and Esternazy case in 18%, then testified that he was instructed by Maj. Ravary to expertly examine the bordereau and specimens of Esterhazy's handwriting. The witness insisted upon experimenting with the original bordereau and specimens of Esterhazy in the presence of experts. Beyond this, the experts and Esterhazy had no relations. The latter, therefore, could not have influenced him, and the witness protested against M. Zola's accusation, and adhered to his opinion in 1897, that the bordereau was not the work of Esterhazy. He, the witness, would wager his head on this. [Laughter.]

M. Couard said he was convinced the caligraphy of the bordereau was neither frank nor natural, and the writer, in his opinion, probably wished to imitate another person's handwriting. The letter of August 28, the witness continued, although declared genuine by Esterhazy himself, seemed doubtful to M. Couard, who added that he believed he would say anything he wanted to say.

Since 1897 the witness had not be-lieved a word Esterhazy had said, and he pointed out there was nothing to prove Esterhazy would not, a year hence, say exactly the opposite of what he said now.

hence, say exactly the opposite of what he said now.

Replying to a question, M. Couard, while reasserting that the bordereau was not the work of Esterhazy, declined to commit himself in regard to Dreyfus, whose handwriting he had never been called upon to examine.

Maitre Demange of the counsel for the defense asked the clerk of the court to read the evidence of M. Atthelin before the Court of Cassation in regard to the genuineness of Esterhazy's letter, which M. Couard doubted, and the evidence of others showing how the letter was seized, and testifying to its genuineness, which was done.

M. Varinard, who, with MM. Couard and Bolhomme, acted as expert in the Esterhazy case, was the next witness. He adhered to his report that the bordereau was not the work of Esterhazy, and said he persisted in this opinion, in spite of Esterhazy's statements to the contrary.

The president of the court assented to this, and at 11:50 o'clock the court adjourned for the day.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] JEROME (Ariz.,) August 28 .- Jerome was thrown into a fever of excitement today by a band of Apache Indians in war paint passing through. Leaders of the tribe stopped and purchased a large supply of ammunition, and hastily left in the wake of their fast-disappearing mrades. Additional interest was lent to the occurrence by the presence of only "bucks" in the band.

A reporter of the Associated Press secured a horse and overtook the Indians a few miles from Jerome, and after considerable persuasion, was per-mitted to accompany them a journey of twenty miles. A trip over the roughest country imaginable, made in impressive silence, was all that seemed likely to reward the scribe for his pains, but when the vicinity of Red Rock was approached, the pace of the horse was quickened, and an impatience was noticed in the Indians, not noticeable before.

In a cañon with perpendicular walls, rising to a height of hundreds of feet, was the remains of a campfire and near by the wigwam. A detour of sev-eral miles led them into the mouth of the canon, and to the scene of a crime that caused a shudder to pass over the mobile features of the braves.

In front of the wigwam was the body of a squaw and papoose, while a few rods in front was a handsome specimen. of the red man, cold in death, horribly mutilated. All the bodies had been scalped. The hands, feet and ears had cut off. The Indians formed a circle about the body, and on the dismembered bodies swore to wreak an awful vengeance.

The scene was most impressive, and the feelings of the Indians were further worked upon by a harangue in the Indian tongue from one of their fiumber, who seemed possessed of a natural style that aroused the fury of passions lain dormant for years. The name Zuni occurred many time in the impassioned appeal. The bodies were buried near the scene of the crime, and the band took the trail to the north

The Zunis are a New Mexico tribe, while the Apaches are of Arizona. A bitter enmity has existed for years between the tribes, but a truce had put an end to hostilities for some time. The three murdered Indians had left their reservation near Camp Verde and were surprised by a band of Zunis. The Apaches took their trail in the direction of New Mexico, and old settlers fear that a furious outbreak will follow, which will end in the extermina tion of one of the tribes. There are no soldiers within reach, and settlers are not disposed to interfere in the outbreak.

On the secand engine, were Engineer Stewart and there would be a collision and threw the derailing switch, thus cutting off the north-bound train, when it was but a few feet away. As a result it went into the ditch. Engine 1372 turned completely over, and the smokestack and bell are buried in the ground, there being a fill of about four feet at the point. The second engine, No. 1377, followed, and now lies directly on top of the there, but at an angle of only about 45 leg. The monster machines are so piled on each other that only one can be seen intil a close inspection is made. Their blots and headlights are exactly in line, and the second engine did not go three inches farther than the other.

The flagman was in the semaphore-house, and some planks were driven through this, the engines stopping about two feat short of the house. He was painfully bruised by the plank, but not pricusity injured. He hid away right after the wreck. All the men on the majnes fumped but Fireman Judd. He sould not get off in time, and went over with his engine. His cab was not rushed, as the tenders did not pile on lop, and he escaped with a scalded and. Those who jumped were bruised, but not badly hurt. None of the pasengers were injured, though they were riven a terrible shock. The narrow-rauge train got through the wreck at 1:10 o'clock this afternoon and proseeded south.

TRAFFIC IN GRAIN.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMIS-SION RULES REGARDING RATES.

Permanently Transact Busines for Foreigners at Lower Figures Than for Home People-The Question of Differentials.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.] WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—The In-terstate Commerce Commission today announced its decision in a case announced its decision in a case involving relative rates on export and domestic traffic in grain and grain products. The commission holds that, in the absence of some justifying reason, it would not be right for American railroads to permanently transact business for foreigners at a less rate than that for which they render corresponding service to American citizens. As to rates on export and domestic shipments of grain the commission decides:

zens. As to rates on export and domestic shipments of grain the commission decides:

"Market conditions sometimes, in case of wheat, but seldem in case of corn, may justify an export rate through the port of New York somewhat lower than the domestic rate, and Philadelphia, Baltimore, Norfolk and Newport News usually take rates which are certainly differentials below the New York rate on both domestic and export traffic. During the period of closed lake navigation, the export and domestic grain rates to New York and the other ports mentioned should ordinarily be the same.

"Rates to other ports, including Boston and ports in the Atlantic north of Boston and Galveston, New Orleans and other guif ports, may perhaps be properly made lower on export than on domestic traffic to enable them to compete for the export business. Such an adjustment of rates would be to the advantage of the carrier, and just allke to the American producer. But as the alike to the American consumer and the American producer. But as the problem is primarily one for the car-riers, rather than this commission, no order is made in relation to this branch of the case, but the export grain rates should not be less to the seaboard from any point than from an intermediate point of the same line. 'As to the rates on export flour, a

"As to the rates on export flour, as compared with export wheat, the commission holds that public policy and good railway policy alike seem to require the same rate on export wheat and export flour, but, in view of the conditions shown in the investigation, a somewhat higher rate on export flour than on export wheat is not in violation of that statute. The published difference in rates is too wide, and the rate on flour for export should not exceed that upon export wheat by more than 2 cents per fundred pounds. The relation of rates on domestic shipments of flour and wheat is not involved in this decision, as the export and domestic freights as the export and domestic freights are handled under different condiare handled under different conditions."

It further appeared that carriers engaged in the transportation of export flour from Minneapolis, at a rate which was 1½ cents less than the domestic rate to the port of export, refuse to make any corresponding concession to intermediate millers. The commission says that this is unjust and unlawful discrimination against such intermediate traffic, and that whatever lime participates in such lower export of flour from Minneapolis must make a corresponding rate upon similar traffic from intermediate points.

upon similar traffic from intermediate points.

The commission also decides that rates on export traffic must be published and filed in accordance with the provisions of section 6 of the Interstate Commerce Act. It is Terther held that so-called through export rates made by adding the ocean rate, whatever it may be, to the inland rail rate, whatever it may be, are not analogous to rates made by joint arrangements between railroad carriers, subject to the statute in the sense that the total rate must be published and filed, and it is enough if the railway carrier published and maintains its own rate to the seaboard. But if there is, in fact, such a joint arrangement that the rate is a joint art under the sixth section of the act to regulate commerce, then the entire through rate should be published, and not the inland division, which, in that case, might vary while the entire rate remains the same.

Of the twelve arches were standing, the twelfth and last having been completed today. It was the intention of the steel contractors, the Pittsburgh Bridge Company of Pittsburgh. Pa., to turn over its work tonight to the general contractors. The iron "traveler." or derrick, which had been used in the erection of the arches, had been removed, and the agents of the bridge company were accounting their work as practically completed, when suddenly, and without the slightest preliminary warning, the arch last put in place fell over against the one next to it. The weight was too much for this, it gave away, crashing against the third, and one by one the great steel spans fell over to the south precisely in the same manner as a number of cards would fall.

Nearly all the men who were killed were at work on top of the arches, forty feet above the ground. Some of them made futile attempts to slide down the side of the arches, but before they could help themselves, they were hurled to the ground. Many of them uttered plercing shrieks for ald as they fell. Most of them were killed outright by the awful nature of their injuries. The skulls of the unfortunate men were crushed into shapeless masses, their limbs were cut of as if by a monster knife, and they were mangled beyond recognition.

The immense structure began falling slowly, each arch being sustained by the crossbeams supporting the rest of the structure. As the mass gained impetus the bars of iron, inches thick, snapped with a loud report and the great mass moved faster and faster in its descent to the ground with a crash that was beard blocks distant. The structure fell leaving the walls practically uninjured and sending up great clouds of dust and dirt.

covered by the arches as they fell. A number of the men fell into small excavations, of which there are many in the ground beneath the steel work, and although some were battered up by the fall, these were saved from the great masses of steel that crashed down upon them.

The direct cause of the accident is not known. One theory which received some support is that a shifting of sand beneath the foundation caused the collarse of the first arch, which hrought all the others to the ground. A story which cannot be substantiated is that a number of werkmen were using a pulley on the north arch while they were taking down some scaffolding that had been erected around it. They caused the arch to sway, and finally it swayed too far and fell out.

The work of rebuilding will commence at once, and it is expected that today's accident will delay the opening of the building not over one month. No direct financial loss will fall upon the Colliseum company which is erecting the structure. The only loser will be the Pittsburgh Bridge Company. The company's loss is estimated at $25,000. The unfinished building occupied the

The unfinished building occupied the ground on the east side of Wabsh avenue, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, streets on which Libby Prison formerly stood. The structure was 304 feet long by 172 feet wide, and when completed would have been eighty-five feet high. It was designed for the accommodation of large conventions, expositions, circus and football games and other popular attractions.

A singular fatality has attended all buildings in Chicago called "Colliseum."

The first to be erected stood on Sixtythird street, and like the present Coliseum, it collapsed while being built in third street, and like the present Coliseum, it collapsed while being built in the fall of 1894. The side walls of the building had been erected and eleven steel arches had been put in place. It was desirable that it should be speedily finished, and the work waspushed night and day. It was the custom of the contractor to allow his men time for lunch between 11:30 p. m. and midnight. During this half hour while all the men were absent all the arches fell to the grand, injuring nobody, but causing a property loss of about $30,000.

The building was rebuilt and the last Democratic National Convention was held within its walls. The second Coliseum was totally destroyed by fire on the night of December 24, 1897, and was never rebuilt. The accident today brought down the third Coliseum which will be rebuilt at once.

MAUD.

All day has this papering man
In the parior held high sway,
And over the chairs with a reckless hand
He has thrown the marks of his stay.

'Twas a week since this he began,
And his paper came quite soon.
Then be brought around a brush and some And left them, along about noon.

All week have we waited and seen No sign of his entering here— All week have we waited and sighed That his footsteps we still could not hear. But the bired girl whispered: "He comes, He is coming with tangled feet, He is bringing his paste and his taceline, too And his face is quite red—with the heat."

He has scratched the plane, 'tis true, And has cluttered the face of the lawn. The carpet is rulned, and so are the door: But what does it matter? He's gone. Come into the parlor, Maud,
But look out for your dress, if you do.
He has ruined our things with his paste an
his scraps—
With his bill he has ruined me, too.

Malden Stakes at Sheepshead Bay Furnishes Great Racing.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The best race at Sheepshead Bay today was the Autumn Handicap Maiden Stake for two-year-olds, in which there was a spectacular finish. Ten Candles was the favorite, and Withers a strong second choice. The favorite made all the running up to the last sixteenth, when Ildrim and Iroquois Belie caught up to him. Then, on the outside, came the added horse, Elfin Conig, and in a driving finish the four finished heads apart, so close that none but the judges could separate them. They gave first money to Elfin Conig, who was 6 to 1, while Ten Candles got second. In the Flying Handicap nearly every horse was well backed. Acushla went to the front at the start, and raced there to the half, when Toluca joined her, and in a few seconds Toluca was in front and won easily, with Heliobus, hard-ridden, in the place. San Jose and Watsonville Clubs are Dropped.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 28.-The San José and Watsonville nines are no onger members of the California Baseball League. They were dropped at a meeting of the six national-game magmates tonight. Those present were Managers Harris, San Francisco; Ew-ing, Oakland; Donnie, Sacramento; Managers Harris, San Francisco; Ewing, Oakland; Donnie, Sacramento; Tuttle, Santa Cruz; Morris, Watsonville, and McGraw of San José. President Moran of the league presided.

After some informal talk Dr. McGraw of San José stated that as there was no money in the game for the Garden City boys, he would ask that they be permitted to withdraw. The Recreation Park Association had been meeting its financial deficits for some time, and the club was not willing to impose such a burden on its friends. Manager McGraw's request was granted.

Then Watsonville made an application for aid, on the ground that the club was not paying expenses, but it was decided to dispense with its services entirely. The percentages of the four remaining clubs will remain as at present. The schedule of games, however, will be rearranged as soon as possible. The intention is to strengthen the remaining clubs with the best players from the nines which have been dropped.

M'LEAN'S WALKOVER.

No Contest Looked for on Deme cratic Nomination for Governor. ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.1 ZANESVILLE (O.,) Aug. 28.—The Democratic State Convention was in-augurated today by the arrival of John

R. McLean this afternoon, and Col. R. McLean this afternoon, and Col. James R. Kilbourne tonight, and all the other candidates for Governor and other places on the State ticket. While the attendance is unusually large, there are not many delegates present. They will come tomorrow with the visiting clubs.

The preliminary meetings do not occur until 4 p.m. tomorrow, and the convention does not convene till Wednesday.

There are probably no changes today

There are probably no changes today in the figures. The arrival of McLean has made his friends more enthusiastic, and the arrival of Kilbourne has made some of his friends more desperate. The other candidates for Governor are not doing much except shaking hands, with the exception of Sherwood, who seems to be in line for second place. The McLean men are so confident of not less than seventy-six more than necessary on the first ballot, that they are figuring on their running-mates. They prefer Col. James Kilbourne for Lieutenant-Governor, but so far neither he nor his friends will concede the nomination to McLean or accept the second place. If the Kilbourne men hold out, it is likely that the ticket will be McLean and Sherwood.

The McLean leaders held a general conference late this afternoon, and gave reassurances afterward of a ma-with Journeyman and Art Alco in the last three heats, making them in good time.

The $10,000 stake, the 2:16 trot, brought out thirteen entries, and was taken by Lord Vincent in the last three heats. He was backed heavily by the talent. Rubber was second in demand, Lecco not selling very well at any figure. Royal Baron by a close decision in the fifth heat dropped just inside the money.

The 2:30 trot was unfinished, Hall Crocket taking the first heat and Valpa second and third. The second heat showed 2:09%, unusual in this class. Summary:

Pacing, 2:14 class, purse $3150, three in five: Maxine won third, fourth and fifth heats; time 2:10%, 2:10½, 2:11.

Dariel won first and second heats and was second; time 2:08%, 2:07½, Art Alco third.

Trotting, 2:30 class, purse $3000, three in five, unfinished: Valpa won second and third heats; time 2:10½, 2:11.

Charter Oak Stakes, $10,000, 2:16 trot, best three in five: Lord Vincent won third, fourth and fifth heats; time 2:10%, 2:10% candidates seem to have rooters available.

The indications today are that there will be opposition to the adoption of the proposed constitution, that provides a more definite plan of party organization and a uniform system for selecting delegates to air Democratic conventions.

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—The inform NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—Ine informa-tion that the first parcel post conven-tion between the United States and a country in Europe had just been signed with Germany aroused consid-erable interest in this city. E. M. Morgan, First Assistant Postmaster General, said it would prove of great benefit to merchants because it would expedite the delivery of articles of merchandise.

expedite the delivery of articles of merchandise.
Under the old regulations samples could be sent by mail as long as their weight did not exceed eight ounces. Under the new regulations, articles of merchandise may be exchanged by mail between this country and Germany provided they are put up in packages which do not exceed eleven pounds in weight. This is not confined to samples. Hitherto such articles had to go by express if speed was desired. Now they will be forwarded by fast mail, a much simpler way.

The change goes into effect on October 1. Some persons think that if it works well it may lead to the installation of a cheap domestic parcel post service all over this country.

Sunday evening about 7 o'clock. Del Basty, Chaudfosse, C. C. As the wine flowed freely, Del Basty and Chaudefosse began to quarrel and Bestor and the peddier left the house. Cugnier was too drunk to leave and he fell in the doorway and lay there.

The conversation between Del Basty and Chaudfosse turned to the former's son, who recently went to his mother, Del Basty's first wife, at New Orleans. The subject angered Del Basty and hot words followed, which led to the shooting, as Cugnier was too drunk to take cognizance of what was going on around him, but Chaudfosse gave the following account of the tragedy at the Coroner's inquest yesterday:

"When I said to Del Basty that his son was better off with his mother he became very angry. I did not want to quarrel with him any more, so I got up and went out to the fence, where my shotgun was standing. Del Basty followed me out and struck me a heavy blow on the head, knocking me down. We then grappled and both fell, the gun also falling to the ground. During the struggle the gun was discharged, but it was entirely accidental; I had nothing whatever to do with it. We both got up, but Del Basty fell back dead."

A bold confidence man, giving the name of Otto A. Ziegler, lately attempted to bunco none other than the Assistant United States Attorney, Thomas D. Bennett. Mr. Bennett received a letter from Tucson purporting to be from the receiver of the Tucson Land Office, M. R. Moore. Inclosed was a certified check for $400, with instructions to purchase a piece of realty from Ziegler for that sum. Mr. Bennett, after depositing the check in bank to his credit, received a visit from Ziegler and with him made the trade for the land, as requested. Then, prior to turning over to him his personal check for $400, he asked, merely as a matter of formality, for identification. This Ziegler was slow in getting. Within a few hours came a telegram from the Tucson bank that the check was bogus. But Ziegler could not be found, and still remains unapprehended.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TIMES. NEW YORK, Aug. 25 .- An expedition will shortly leave this city to dig for the long-lost treasures of ancient Panama, sacked by the buccaneers of the Caribbean Sea in 1871. The scheme is being pushed by a syndicate of capi-talists who have bought outright two good-sized islands, off the Cuban coast, supposed to contain beneath their sands veritable mines of silver and gold, wrought and in ingots, besides precious stones of priceless value all transported from the ill-fated city of the isthmus when it was the wealth center of the

The islands in question are Cayo Romano and Cayo Cruz, sister satellites of Cuba, closely adjacent to the eastern half of her northern coast within a day's sail from Puerto Principe. Cayo Romano is 18 by 91 and Cayo Cruz but 11 by 14 miles in dimensions. They were purchased for a round million, just paid to certain French and Spanish owners.

The clue to the alleged location of the lost treasures was recently unearthed from certain ancient historical records telling an adventurous story outdoing even the fictions of "Stevenson's Mysterious Island," or the most bloodthirsty tales of Capt. Kidd.

In 1510, the story runs, one Vasquez Nunez de Balbao, escaping in a bread cask from Hayti, where he had been sentenced to undeserved execution, crossed the Isthmus of Panama, upon whose Pacific Coast he found a beautiful Indian village, since called Panama, which immediately afterward became a Spanish settlement. A landing was built upon the nearest convenient harbor, soon afterword connected with the village by a paved mule road. This harbor soon became the depot for all Spanish trade with the southern Pacific Coast, especially for the dazzling products of the Peruvian mines, already yielding enormous wealth to the Spaniards, who endeavored to keep their El Dorado a secret from other nations. Soon the village of Panama spread to this harbor, and when the slow and bulky galleons of those day,s fearing Soon the village of Panoma spread to this harbor, and when the slow and bulky galleons of those day,s fearing the perilous trip around the Horn, an-chored now and then on the Atlantic side, heavy shipments of gold and sil-ver were carried across the isthmus, loaded upon these lumbersome craft and transported to Spain. Thus Pan-man became a flourishing port, richer and transported to spain. In a ran-ama became a flourishing port, richer than any settlement founded in those days in any of the Americas. Indeed, according to the story, "bars of silver and ingots of gold were piled in the streets without fear or anxiety for and ingots or gold were piled in the streets without fear or anxiety for their safety."

When Pope Alexander VI in 1524 issued a bull conferring all of the Americos upon Spain, England and France cried aloud with ridicule, and soon Europe rang with stories of cruelities inflicted by the jealous Spaniards upon luckless traders caught trespassing upon the guarded waters skirting their new-found treosure-land. The American seas speedily swarmed with English, Scotch, Welsh and Frehch adventurers, named at that time "buccaneers," because they rationed their ships with "Boucon," a strange food furnished them by the island tribes of Carlbbean Indians. These buccaneers left their native lands ostensibly with the patriotic motive of bringing down vengeance upon the heads of the Spaniards for the torture of their countrymen. They pounced upon every Spanish ship spled in western waters, and soon afterward, when England and Spain went to war, many were given roving licenses as privateers by the British King.

yet craving for still more, Morgan remained in Panama three weeks, taking possession of the richest villa in the city for his headquarters. Here he held captive the beautiful wife of a wealthy Spanish merchant, who protected her virtue only by aiming a dagger at her heart whenever he opproached her. Meanwhile, his men violated the helpless women deserted in the city, and those returned with the captivis treasure ships, sparing not even the nuns in their convents, although their leader had endeavored to suppress drunkenness among them by declaring all of the liquor in the city to have been poisoned by the escaping populace, these rufflans sank into such lawless debauchery that the new-found paradise became transformed into a veritable hell. with his booty over the Pacific, Morgan ordered every ship in Panama Harbor to be burned. His command was obeyed.

When the time for departing arrived, the collected treasure had become so enormous that 175 pack animals, mules and cattle, heavily laden, were required to carry it back to the source of the Chagres, whither the murderous buccaneers retreated their steps, followed by 600 prisoners, most of them women, the latter deafening the heavens with their moans and cries, as behind them they saw the flames devouring their homes. Reaching the canoes, which had awaited his return under guardianship of a small detail of men, Morgan summoned his 600 captives before him, and gave them three days in which to furnish an extravagant ransome or be transported as slaves. A few were able to find the sum required, among them the beautiful woman whom Morgan had held in his villa. The remainder were borne away. The night previous to the day set for the sailing of the galleons, Morgan made a distribution of his enormous spoils, allowing each of his followers the worth of only about 200 in our money, or a total share valued at about $45,000. That this was but a meager fraction of the total booty is borne out by the fact that most of the buccaneers became enraged to to such a degree that Morgan was faced by a serious mutiny, and probably threatened loss of his life. While the crews of all but three of his attendant ships were sleeping, on this same night he slyly raised his sails. The three vessels in question whose crews were promised more, and which contains the great bulk of the treasure, followed. The enraged buccaneers did not discover their predicament until far too late to give chase.

Before morning had dawned upon these sluggards, their admiral was well on his way toward Cuba. Skimming the north coast and keeping a careful lookout behind he came upon Cayo Romano and Cayo Cruz, then, as now, uninhabited. In one of these islets, in a spot to which the new owners hold the mysterious clew, the treasures were quickly buried, only a few of the crew, allowed to come on shore, being admitted to the secret. The galleona weighed anchor agains and sailed to another point on the island coast. Here the under guard, to await the pleasure of their new lord and master.

Morgan thereupon put off for England, where, upon relating his victory over the hated Spanish, he was graciously received by Charles II, made commander in the naval establishment of Great Britain and knighted. He set to work to formulate another extensive buccaneering scheme, but the Kingfearing criticism, prevented its organization by a royal order.

The bloodthirsty pirate admiral now Sir Henry Morgan, was disposed of through his appointment to the lieutenant-governorship of Jamaica. While in that island he was haunted by constant dread of his surviving comrades, shaping as they did the secrets of his buried treasures. He took pains to put several of these to death.

Seventeen years after the sack of Panama Morgan died, bearing with him, according to common belief, the hidden key to his earthly storehouse of gold, silver and precious jewels, to the other world. Cayo Romano and Cayo Crumeanwhile have remained practically insignificant and undeveloped, although the natural deposits of crystal sait upon the former are said to be sufficiently abundant and rapid in growth to supply the needs of the entire Cuban population until infinity. The First of the Eleven Neighbors. For the benefit of Rupture sufferers, I state my experience. I had suffered from Rupture for years. In January, 1896, I learned that Prof. Joseph Fandrey, European Specialist in Rupture Curing, had just located in our city. On March 2nd, 1896, I went to Prof. Fandrey and asked if he would guarantee to cure my rupture. The Prof. said no. he would not, I would have to guarantee myself by following his instructions. This I did and on July 1st, 1896, just three months after beginning his treatment I was cured and threw away my trugs. At the time I was cured I was at 140 N. George was standing by the side of the road, when two boys, believed to be the prisoners, pulled up the horse they were driving and from their cart one of them deliberately shot Charlebois. Rufus E. Farringtan, one of the pioneers of Arizona, is dead. He came to Prescott in 1863 and had lived for twenty years in Maricopa, and Phoenix. City Attorney Darby has submitted to the City Council an opinion that the tax-exempted Santa Fé, Prescott and Phoenix Rallway should pay municipal taxes for that portion of its property within the city limits. A second decision holds that druggists dealing in alcoholic liquors should pay a regular saloon license.

It has officially been decided in Phoenix that it is a misdemeanor for a white woman and colored man to walk together on the streets. The so-cial status of the individuals has something, of course, to do with the case.

New York a few months ago. The claims secured to Senator Clark are to be hereafter known as the Iron King group, and those of the Hayden interests will be called the Copper Chief. Both groups are now being actively developed.

The United Verde Copper Company has contracted with a Los Angeles foundry for the delivery of $30,000 worth of heavy piping, for the installation of waterworks for Jerome, and for the company's works above the town. The water is to be secured at the Allen Spring, near the Equator mine, and is to be carried to a point above the town by a fiume.

There is trouble among the stockholders of the old Cobre Grande Copper Company, a concern incorporated almost wholly witwhin Yavapai county, Its stockholders are men of moderate means. The mines worked are situated below the border, south of Bisbee, and undoubtedly are very rich. A month ago the company's manager and agent, George Mitchell, transferred about 75 per cent. of the stock to J. O. Costello, a capitalist of Buffalo, N. Y., the consideration being $380,000. It is now alleged that Mitchell should have sold for no such sum, and that his division of the proceeds was far from satisfactory anyway. On this basis, he has been sued by two of the stockholders, William Vanderbilt and James Shirley, for $125,000, alleged to be their share of the sum realized in the sale. The claimants have located and attached Mitchell's share of the proceeds. The same plaintiffs have also sued George W. Hull of Jerome for a share of the money received by him for the United Verde Extension mines, near Jerome.

Absolutely fireproof buildings are to be a feature of the new Jerome. One of the best will be the new Clinkscales Block, 36x84 feet in size, and two stories in height. The upper story will be divided into offices for professional men.

ACT TOGETHER.

Congressman-elect James C. Need am of Modesto is quoted in a recent patch as expressing himself quite strongly in favor of united action in ongress by the delegations of the Pacific Coast States. He declares that there is a very strong sentiment nong the members of the California delegation in favor of joining forces with the delegations from Oregon and Washington in the coming Congress. "The interests of the Pacific Coast." Mr. Needham is quoted as saying, were never so much in common as they are today. The settlement of the Philippine question and the Nicaragua Canal are the two problems in which Washington, Oregon and California have a deep and vital interest.

Mr. Needham is right in this propo sition. The three Coast States named certainly have very many interests in nmon, and united action in all ases where there are such interests would be advisable and wise. The iggested alliance need not, and should not, take the form of a "log-rolling" combination, in which all other intersts are sacrificed or made subservient to a fanatical, hard-and-fast union of votes on all questions, right or wrong. It is not probable that Mr. dham, or any other Congressman of the Pacific Coast, has in view any uch absurd alliance. If such an idea entertained in any quarter it would tter be abandoned at once, for it is utterly impracticable.

But it would be perfectly right and oper for the Congressmen of the Pacific Coast to act together on all ques tions in which this part of the Union is directly interested. Such united action ought to be possible, upon strictly on-partisan lines. Coast members should be able to forget their partisanship when questions of this kind and the course pursued by the Washare up for consideration, and it is ington government. There is less and to be hoped that they may do so. By less opposition in Cuba to the Ameristanding together for the common good of their section they will be able to understand us better, and to have carry through to success many measthat would have no chance of uccess whatever in the absence of united action. The idea advanced by Mr. Needham, though not by any means a new discovery, is an excellent feast of Spanish promises and a famone, and its assiduous cultivation at next session of Congress, and at future sessions, would be productive bearing the impress of governmental of much good to the Pacific Coast.

While no friend of the administra tion has ever doubted, for a moment, hat the pledges of Congress in regard to Cuba would be carried out with fidelity, and in a practical man-ner, it must be confessed that the raw and inconsiderate criticisms of unscrupulous and fanatical opponents of the administration have at times been vexatious, if not galling. The proclamation about to be issued to the Cuban people will be the first official act of the administration giving direct assurance that the present military government will be replaced by civil government as soon as it is deemed safe and expedient to make the change. It should set at rest, once and for all time, the foolish and unfounded charge that the Government of the United States does not intend to keep its pledges toward the Cubans, but really aims at annexation instead of at Cuban independence.

Annexation is a possibility of the future. But it can come only as a result of the legitimately expressed wish of the Cubans themselves, after they have attained and exercised the and other prophets of evil have made rights of a sovereign people. If, when more or less ado at divers and various fully possessed of their independence they wish to become a part of the United States, politically and teritorially, it will be an easy matter to complete the compact.

THE TRANSVAAL SITUATION.

If a reliable opinion might be formed from the present outlook in the Transvaal, that opinion would point unmistakably to war as the only solution of the difficulty. Such a solution would probably be effectual, for it could hardly result in any other way than in victory for the English arms But it would be a heroic and terrible remedy, which the whole civilized world will fervently hope may not be applied; for the war would be stubbornly contested on both sides, it could not be otherwise than bloody, and it would probably be protracted. The possibility of a peaceful settlement of the questions in dispute is not yet by any means exhausted. But both sides are exceedingly stubborn, and very much disinclined to make concessions, hence the chances of an amicable arrangement are correspondingly remote. It is somewhat like the old problem of an irresistible force meeting an immovable body. Nobody has ever yet been able to tell exactly what would happen in case of such an impact, but people with varying powers of imagination have varying ideas on the subject.

In this connection, the speech of Hon. Joseph . Chamberlain, Secretary of State for the British Colonies, at an entertainment given at his home on Saturday, is of great significance, Mr. Chamberlain's speech was, in point of fact, whether premeditated or unpremeditated, the most important utterance coming from him since the adjournment of Parliament. It may safely be assumed that Mr. Chamberlain, in this speech, voiced the sentiment of the great majority of the English people. The position of responsibility which he occupies gives to his utterances more than ordinary significance and interest. His remarks, in themselves, show that he fully realized the importance which that he was correspondingly cautious in his choice of language.

After expressing regret that the troubles in the Transvaal had not yet been amicably settled, Mr. Chamberlain declared that, while President last annual report: Cruger had made, perhaps, some little progress, he could not say truly that the crisis is past. "If the rupture which we have done eyerything in our power to avoid," he continued, "is forced upon us, I am confident we shall have the support not only of the vast majority of Britons, but of the whole empire. In all this bad business there is one thing upon which we can congratulate ourselves, and that is the unity of the empire. No British subject can suffer injustice anywhere without awakening a responsive chord in our most distant colonies, which stand the ground in maintaining the honor and integrity of the empire." These are words of no uncertain sound. Assuming that they voice the prevailing sentiments of the English people and there is every reason to believe that this assumption is correct-the only deduction admissible is that the English are determined to insist upon the position which they have assumed in reference to the Transvaal dispute, to the point of war, if necessary, and that in this determination the English people are practically a unit. Against such a united front the opposition of the Transvaal government will be as useless as the beating of the sea against the invulnerable rocks of Gibraltar. A peace commission has formed or is forming in the Transvaal to visit England, with a view to effecting an amicable adjustment of the existing difficulties. If this commission goes armed with plenary power to make concessions and negotiate conditions of peace upon the most favorable terms that can be obtained, there will be some possibility of an agreement by which war may be avoided. But if it goes to England with any idea of driving the English government, by threats or other form of coercive diplomacy, into a compromise which would be repugnant to English ideas of right and justice, the commission might as well save itself the trouble of a trip to England, for its mission will be fruitless. John Bull, like Brother Jonathan, while he may sometimes be persuaded into this or that course of action, cannot be driven by the object being to contradict the stories that have been circulated, to the effect that the United States Govany power under the sun.

geedeece etececcecce THE NEW ERA OF FARMING. One of the latest educational facts, almost startling in its wide significance, is that 40 per cent. of the stu dents in our universities and colleges are sons and daughters of farmers. This class, regarded, except in rare instances, as devoid of ambition, wealth, culture and refinement—this uncouth, horny-fisted wrestler nature-is coming to the front as the chief producer of brains as well as of grains. It is one of the most encouraging signs of the times. Science and invention are doing wonders to remove that fearful drain upon muscle and nerve which formerly sapped the life of the farmer and made him prematurely bent and decrepit. The maxim, "He that by the plow would thrive, himself must either hold or drive," holds in spirit, but not in letter. A successful farmer cannot afford nowadays to do that which he can hire better done, any more than he can afford to hire done that which he himself has time to do. He must be a man full of resource, ready at a plumber or mason. Every agricultural school should give instruction in these branches, and should graduate no stu dent who is not fairly proficient in all of them. The demand for skilled work has greatly raised the average standard of labor. Farmers, when they meet now adays, discuss tools, machines, crops and markets, not, as formerly, the weather. The competition to excel in various lines has given a wonderful stimulus to general improvement. The improved grade of horses and live stock has demanded intelligence and keen observation. The average farmer has reduced the length of his working day, so that his family does not now get the fag end of his cheer and the butt end of his temper. The Farmers' Almanac has given place to interesting and helpful papers and magazines. Few farmers, indeed, are content with the monthlies and week lies, but must have a daily, that they may keep up with the times. This stimulus to brain activity increases the intelligence put into farm work with obvious good results. We are lately informed that more pianos and organs have been sold to the Middle State farmers in the last three months than in the previous five years. Not only is there music and cheer inside the home, but there is sentiment and beauty in the flowers and trees outside the planting of which is becoming almost universal. The fact that many young men are "staying with it" proves that farming is more attractive than formerly.

To the average young woman graduate of our institutions, it is said that farming is not attractive, and she may possibly be somewhat justified for her impressions; but men have the ability to overcome this obstacle. They should give the wife more thoughtful attention and consideration than they imagine the town husband gives his wife. They should allow her to visit and receive her friends should favor her, and it is to be hoped that she will favor him with as attractive a personal appearance as possible. Farm life can be made attractive, even for a cultured and re fined girl. In Southern California under favorable conditions of irrigation, the rural home is especially attractive, and if intelligently and vigorously maintained, is as profitable as it is delightful. Farmers are working out their own salvation, yet, as would be attached to his words, and their success so largely controls the prosperity of the country, self-interest dictates that we all help maintain and improve the conditions which make farming attractive. Secretary Wilson was right when he said, in his

of improvement and progress is more general among American farmers than ever before; that the necessity of education along the lines pertaining to economic production is more fully recognized, and that the farmer's home is becoming more and more the sea of comfort, the center of intelligence virtue, and happiness, the source of strong men for all vocations, and the sure safeguard of the republic

OWNER OF THE "SHAMROCK."

CIR THOMAS LIPTON has sailed Sfor the United States, Sir Thomas is the owner of the Shamrock, the bia for the America's cup. He is the most extensive provision dealer in the world, and his wealth is away up in the millions. He is a bachelor, about 50 years of age, and is more frequently classed with the good fellows than with the good people. Sir Thomas is no stranger in this country. He has been here frequently, and has large business interests here. He is the owner of vast herds of cattle in Texas and Montana is one of the most extensive patrons of our sugar refineries, and does a business of more than a million a year with Yachting is a new fad with Sir Thomas. In fact, it is as new to him as his title. There are two kinds of sirs among the British titled classes; one hereditary, the other merely for life. The hereditary sirs are called baronets, the others knights. There is no great difficulty in catching knighthood if you have money to spend on a bauble of that kind. A contribution to a charity, or to an institution patronized by royalty will fetch it, or a good sum to the campaign chest of the party in power is another method of landing the prize. During the Queen's diamond jubilee the Princess of Wales formed the idea of giving a square feed with pudding and pie accompaniments to the poor of London. She asked for subscriptions. Mr. Lipton planked down $125,000, and soon afterward he was converted into Sir Thomas. Neither his title nor his great wealth, however, has swelled Sir Thomas's head. He is a plain, direct business man, generous and charitable; knows how to enjoy life, and counts among his friends, both in Great Britain and this country, some of the most distinguished of living men.

During a visit to this country about four years ago, Sir Thomas told at a social gathering in Washington how he got his first start in life. He is a native of Ireland, but went to Glasgow when he was a mere youth. He worked as a clerk in a small grocery store at a salary of 5s a week, and in three years managed to save £5. With this he went to Ireland to visit his relatives. While there he was fed plentifully on Irish bacon, the best of its kind in the world. He learned that the bacon in the country places could be bought for world. He learned that the bacon in the country places could be bought for a few cents a pound. He invested three of his pounds in Irish bacon, and took it to Glasgow with him. There was a demand for it, and he cleared £12 in the transaction. He returned to Ireland, invested all his money in bacon, and got an option on all in the neighorhood. Before a year he had cleared. hood. Before a year he had cleared £200 and laid the foundation of his for-

Lieut. Henn, who contested for the America's cup about ten years ago; Lord Dunraven, who contested for it Lord Dunraven, who contested for it about five years ago, and Sir Thomas Lipton, the present challenger, are Irishmen. Sir Thomas has as his guests on board the steam yacht Erin, now on the way to this country, Lord Russell, the Lord Chief Justice of England; Lord Charles Beresford, the most dashing of Great Britain's admirals, and Arnold Morley, who was Postmaster-General of the last Gladstone Cabinet all three like their Gladstone Cabinet, all three like host being Irish.

All over this country advocates of municipal ownership of public utilities have pointed to the St. Louis waterworks as proof of their contention that municipal service was better than private service. So far as it goes this example is good. But there has been a first-class scare in St. Louis for a couple of weeks over the fear that an unfit man nominated by the Mayor for the chief administration of the waterworks might be confirmed by the municipal Council. The scare takes nearly all the spine out of the municipal ownership argument. The excellent, the superexcellent of municipal ownership becomes in a day a grave danger. A single bad man at the head of the department, appointed or elected through politics, makes plain the defect that municipal ownership always means the best public service. Municipal ownership is all right when the men in charge of the utilities are honest. Municipal ownership is all wrong when we have officers who are out for the stuff, or who run the utilities as political machines. Like any other politico-economico-sociologic question, this one of municipal ownership resolves itself into a question of individual honesty. The honest man solves all the difficulty. To claim that municipal others who need to the difficulty of the municipal ownership resolves itself into a question of individual honesty. The honest man solves all the difficulty. To claim that municipal others who are out for the stuff. this one of municipal ownership resolves itself into a question of individual honesty. The honest man solves all the difficulty. To claim that municipal ownership and management of utilities would produce more honest men than private ownership, is to talk dodderingly. Politics, in appointment and election, does not tend to select the capable and honest administrator. A municipally mismanaged waterworks is worse than a private waterworks managed rapaciously. No system of control of public utilities will be perfect untill men are perfect. The best system of red tape, under the most elaborate ordinances, cannot suppress the ingenuity of the dishonest political officer in any department of public service. One bad man getting into such a place destroys all the theory of the superiority of municipal ownership. It is to be doubted whether the selfish interest of private controllers of public utilities is not a stronger motive for good service than we can find continuously in the men who may be given the control of great departments under municipal ownership. There is no security from dishonesty and rapacity but one. That is honesty. And certainly we do not look for a greater proportion of honesty among municipal politicians than among the officers and servants of private corporations. Municipal evils when it can make sure of securing honest servants. When it can do this, private corporations will have been endowed with hearts and souls. When men shall be so universally honest that we shall not think of injuring their feelings by taking the various kinds of public service out of their hands.

Robert A. Pattison of Pennsylvania, who was twice elected Mayor of the Republican city of Philadelphia, and twice elected Governor of the overwhelmingly Republican State of Pennsylvania, has just entered a shrewd bid for the support of the national expansionists among the Democrats in the next national convention. Mr. Pattison has just returned to Philadelphia after concluding an extensive tour of the Western States. He declares that the people are too prospectus to be bothering themselves about free coinage at any ratio, and that two-thirds of the Democrats he conversed with were in favor of expansion, and of a rigid suppression of Aguinaido's rebellon. Mr. Pattison is a careful observer and shrewd politician. He did not contribute much of his wealth nor did he overwork his lungs, in the effort to elect Eryan in '96, but he voted for him and is therefore "regular." Pattison is well aware that the young men of the country of all parties favor expansion, favor holding on to the Philippines, and keeping the flag afford wherever it was raised by American solders. Pattison is a very available candiate. He is tolerably well off financially, he has a record of victories behind him, the bolters of '96 would support him, and his name on the ticket would not be a menname on the licket would not be a menace to the conservative business interests of the country. Mar. Bryan has burned the bridges behind him. He cannot now accept a nomination except on an anti-expansion platform.

be surmised. Some of the members, on emerging, declared that they would not again go into executive session. Mr. Udell, in making the motion for a secret session, mentioned the fact that the report of the Teachers' Committee, assigning positions to the teachers for the ensuing year, had been made and accepted at a meeting when he was absent. It may be inferred that the report was the basis of dellebrations. When the open session of the board was resumed, the name of Miss Maude Goodell was added to the list of substitute teachers; Messrs. Stearns and Hendrick of the Teachers' Committee voting nay. The two members mentioned comprise a majority of the committee.

W. L. Frew, ex-principal of the Second-street school, asked and received a certificate of honorable dismissal. Bills aggregating $1173.82 reported by the Finance Committee, were ordered paid. The purchase of twenty-one new Sloyd benches was authorized, and the Building Committee was authorized to invite bids for connecting the Cornwall-street school with the city sewer, by a line of vitrified pipe. The title to the lot upon which the San Pedro-street school stands has been questioned, and the records on the point are obscure. J. W. Hendrick was appointed to secure a certificate of title. The Ebell Society and other organizations have signified their desire to beautify the school rooms at their own. expense. Upon motion, Members Davis, Chambers and Wincup were appointed a committee of three to take charge of the matter and secure uniformity of action.

When the question of the city's title to the San Pedro-street school site was under discussion, Mr. Udell stated that the certificates of title to many lots upon which school buildings now stand only showed the ownership as vested in the man from whom the previous boards had purchased. In his opinion, certificates of title to many lots upon which school buildings now stand only showed the ownership as vested in the city. Mr. Hendrick pointed out that such an action would probably involve a heavy expense. The

The frequent need of the board for light on matters pertaining to the proper conduct of schools and the physical needs of the children was presented by Mr. Udell in a short speech. He declared it his intention to introduce a motion at a subsequent whereby a request amounting session whereby a request amounting to introduce a motion at a subsequent session, whereby a request amounting almost to an order should be issued to the city school teachers, requiring their attendance on the meetings by the board. Mr. Hendrick wished to know if all would have to be present, the board. Mr. Hendrick wished to know if all would have to be present, and remarked sotto voce that as the teachers' salaries had been reduced, it would undoubtedly please them highly to be compelled to attend the sessions of the board. Mr. Udell retorted that if three or four teachers were present, the board might not feel like laying violent hands on the salary list. The question of the disposition of the ninth grade, which has been perplexing the minds of the school fathers, was referred to a committee consisting of Messrs. Washburn, Wincup and Hendrick. The defeat of the High School bonds has left the board without any immediate means of relieving the congested condition of the High School building. It is thought that the ninth grade will have to be taken elsewhere, but where has not been decided.

CHILDLESS.

A little figure moves from room to room,
I meet it now and then upon the stair;
If fills before me through the twilight gloom,
And when I wake at morning it is there.
It wears a little frock of quaint design—
My fancy fashioned it with loving care—
Although no needle wrought its stitches fine,
Although its fabrio is but empty air.
Sometimes at dusk there falls upon my ear
A trill of baby lauxhter clear and sweet;
Sometimes through all the silent house I heap
The hurried coming of its tiny feet.
And off I used to plead with it to stay,
To tarry in my lonely life awhile.
I know not if its eyes are blue or gray,
I only know—in angel-wise they smile.
But I have learned my fate—no more I call
On the wee stranger to ablde with me,
For well I know that filtting figure small
Is but the ghost of what will never be.

If a reporter happened to say as much, based on an intelligent deduction from plain condition, every medico in Pasadena would jump on his devoted head and anathematize him unsparingly. The bonds for the increase of the school facilities of the city amounting to $200,000, which were authorized at the special election of last Tuesday, are to be issued at once, the City Council having directed the presentation of an ordinance to that effect from the City Attorney yesterday. This ordinance will be presented at the next meeting of the Council. In the matter of issuing the water bonds, or such an amount of them as the city desires, the Council will depend entirely upon the advice of the legal counsel of the city.

It may be several weeks before the water bonds are ordered issued. The anyass of the vote of the special elections of last week yesterday by the Council resulted in an official declaration of the results already stated.

As was expected the City Council has ordered the retention of the site for an engine-house in the southern district of the Fifth ward purchased by the city some months ago. THE SITE RETAINED.

The Board of Public Works and Roard of Fire Commissioners, to whom was jointly referred the matter of the propesed sale of the engine-house site.

in the southern section of the Fifth Ward, presented a report recommendating that the city retain that site. The reason for this recommendation, as stated in the report, was that some 250 citizens of that part of the city had presented a petition asking the Council and presented a petition asking the Council of Dourse considered the site the best that could be secured in that particular district. When the report was read Councilman Vetter took the floor to oppose the action recommended. At the time that the proposition to sell the lot was made in the Council by Councilman Toll, that gentleman presented a written statement in which he gave his reasons for moving that the lot be sold. Reading a portion of this statement Mr. Vetter said he could not see why the Council should change its sentiments from what it was at the time that the motion to sell the lot was adopted. His argument was that if there was any reason for the sale at any time, that reason still existed, and inasmuch as the intention had been to remove from the Council certain criticism which had resulted from its having paid too high a price for the lot, he could not see how changing the course of the Council in buying the lot was wrong," said Mr. Vetter, "our action in keeping it is wrong. Two wrongs do not make a right."

Councilman Pierce, a member of the Board of Public Works, and who particiolated in the investigation of the common school bonds carried, and the High School bonds for the common school bonds.

it is wrong. Two wrongs do not make a right."
Councilman Pierce, a member of the Board of Public Works, and who participated in the investigation of the matter, replied at length. He argued that it was the duty of the Council to give the people of the city what they desired with reference to the locations of engine-houses and other public buildings whenever that could be done. He had voted for the motion to sell the lot because he had thought it the right thing to do, and because it was the wish of those who were more familiar with the matter than he was. Since then, however, a petition signed by 250 people residing in the neighborhood which is to be protected by the engine-house in that district, had been presented, in which they ask that the site be retained, and give what is considered good reason for their request. "It is our duty to the people that we consider such requests, and if there was not justice in such a request, it would not have been signed by so many property-owners," said Mr. Pierce. "Not wholly satisfied with the mere filwould not have been signed by some property-owners," said Mr. Pierce. "Not wholly satisfied with the mere fling of this petition, the Board of Public Works and Board of Fire Commissioners visited the site to see for themselves what the property was. Then we held two meetings, at which a full expression of opinion was heard as to the matter. We found that it was the almost unanimous wish of the people who are most concerned that we should keep the lot, and whatever the wishes of the individual members of this Council may be, we considered it our duty to give the people what they wanted. It is true that cheaper sites could be secured, but it is also true that, regardless of price, no site as well adapted for the purpose is available in that part of the city. In getting the best possible site, I do not think the city's interests are at all injured, and it is for these reasons that we have made such a recommendation." William Henderson, a property-owner in that district, asked permission to address the Council on the subject, and it was granted. He spoke at length, saying that the site was, with reference to location, a good place for an engine-house, but as it was possible to buy two or three sites for the same amount he objected strongly to the city's paying any such sum for that property. He then read a statement as to the alleged impossibility to sesure proper sewer connection with the property, and endeavored to show that as the nearest sever is 1200 feet distant from the lot it would not be possible to make such a connection. If a sewer connection is to be made, he said, the engine-house would have to be raised several feet to secure sufficient fall in the pipes.

Acting Chief of Fire Department Smith was called upon to say what he thought of the location as an engine-house site. He replied with an emphatic indorsement of the purchase regardless of the price that had been paid for it. "It is the best adapted site of any in the city for the purpose, because it gives us an outlet on three streets," said he. "Th and that will answer all purposes.

When the sewers are built there we can connect properly with them."
Ex-Fire Commissioner Frank Sabichi, who wwns much property in that part of the city, also spoke in favor of the retention of the site. He declared that in such matters it was the duty of the retention of the site. He declared that in such matters it was the duty of the Council to give to the people what they desired. He had gone personally to the residents of that vicinity and had found them almost unanimously in favor of the erection of an engine-house on the lot. He also stated to the Council the advantages of this lot over any other in that part of the city, and closed with a strong appeal for the adoption of the recommendation of the joint boards.

Councilman Todd said the two boards in their investigation of the matter had considered only two things, the desirability of the lot and the wishes of the people. They had given the matter more attention than any other one subject which had been referred to them for weeks, and their recommendation was made with the honest belief that the retention of the lot was for the best interests of the cty.

When the question on the adoption of the recommendation of the two boards was put, all the members of the Council except Mr. Vetter voted in the affirmative. The report was declared adopted and the lot will be retained.

Mark Bunce presented a demand against the city for $5 on account of his appointment as inspector at the election precinct ot No. 610 East Fifth street, at the school bond election. This presentation is the result of a quarrel which occurred at that polling place early on election day. Bunce was appointed an inspector of the election there, and asserts that he arrived at the polls only a few minutes ofter the place had been opened. He found George Firtsch occupying his place, the latter having been appointed because Bunce was not there in time. Quite a quarrel ensued between the two, but Bunce was not permitted to serve, though he remained about the place most of the day. He claims his inability to serve was no fault of his, and demands pay. The demand was referred to the Finance Committee. The other officers of election who had served at that polling place stated to the several Councilmen that Bunce had not reached the polls until half an hour after the board had been organized, and that in his obsence another man was given his place as provided by law. The cemands in favor of those who did serve were approved and ordered paid.

A petition for the partial improvement of Posadena avenue by filling the holes in that thoroughfare and for the daily sprinkling of the roadway was referred to the Board of Public Works. On mo-tion of Councilman Pierce, action on barley and bran for one year. On motion of Councilman Pierce, action on this request was deferred for one week, and the Chief of the fire department was directed to report to the Council on the wearing quality of the various kinds of hose now in use in the department. Mr. Pierce said it was the desire of the Council to know just which particular brand of hose had given the best service, and which had proven the poorest, for guidance in the purchase of new hose, the desire being to avoid buying any hose that has not come up to requirements. The bids for feed will be advertised for at once.

The Finance Committee reported, recommending that the City Attorney be directed to present an ordinance authorizing the issuance of the $200,000 worth of bonds for common-school purposes. Nothing was said about the water bonds, as the Council will, in this matter, await the advice of its legal advisers. The report of the committee was adopted, and the ordinance will be presented at the next meeting of the Council mittee was adopted, and the ordinance will be presented at the next meeting of the Council.

An extension of thirty days was granted George Reinschild in which to complete the improvement of a portion of Eschandia street.

At the request of the City Engineer, a motion by Mr. Pierce was adopted directing that official to establish the lines of the official bed of the Los Angeles River from the Buena-Vistastreet bridge to the north bridge of the Southern Pacific Rallway. City Engineer Olmsted explained that the reason for this is that the Santa Fe Rallway desires to remove its large wooden bridge north of the Buena Vista-street bridge, and to replace it with a handsome steel structure. The work will begin in a few days. The official bed of the river there has never been established. The company desires to know just where it can place the abutments for its new bridge without interfering with the rights of the city.

The contract for the improvement of a portion of Twenty-nint street, for which bids were received at the morning session of the Council, was awarded to P. J. Richmond, on recommendation of the Board of Public Works. The contract for the improvement of a portion of Twenty-first street was on recommendation of the same board, awarded to M. S. Cummings.

THIRD-STREET TUNNEL. Work.

When the contract for the Thirdstreet tunnel was assigned, it was announced that by using an excavat-ing machine the work would be com-pleted much more rapidly than by hard work. The machine has not hand work. The machine has not been the success that had been expected, and as much time has elapsed since the contract was let, the City Engineer has insisted that a greater effort be made to finish the work within the contract limit. The contractors have agreed to place two additional crews of men at work, to proceed with the excavation by hand. In addition to these crews, the machine will be used whenever possible.

City Auditor to Adopt Features o Oakland's System.

City Auditor Carson has returned from Oakland, where he has been for the past two weeks making a study of the system used there for keeping the city accounts. For a city the size of city accounts. in any city on the Coast, and it was with a view to learning it thoroughly that the City Auditor went there. He was welcomed by the Oakhand officials, and was given every facility to investigate the plan, the Auditor of Oakland and his deputies being especially courteous to him.

As a result of his investigation he found that the Oakland system, as a whole, cannot be adopted here, because of the different method in which the business of the municipality is conducted here. There are many features, however, which will be adopted in this city. Heretofare, under the present system, it has been necessary to make of the expense account a general catchbasin for all kinds of expenses, and as a result it has been impossible to ascertain at the end of each fiscal year just what the departments have expended on each particular account other than the general accounts. By adopting a part of the Oakland system this will be changed, and hereafter the annual reports will be much more comprehensive, in that they will show how all the money used has been expended.

Street-sweeping Carts.

The twenty iron hand carts for use by the street-sweepers have been delivered to the city, and Inspector Franklin will place them in service tomorrow morning. In using a cart the sweeper will take one of the iron cans now on the sidewalks and haul it with him as he proceeds over the street, and when it is full will deposit it in an alley where it will be emptied into a wagon. The other cans will be removed from the streets and the empty ones kept at the place where the full ones are to be deposited. By using these carts and cans the sweepers will dispense with the backbreaking small scoops which they have been handling since the hand-cleaning of the streets was in-augurated. It is expected that by the The twenty iron hand carts for use use of the carts the service will be bettered. Hand-sweeping will probably be extended to portions of the city where it has not been tried because of the small force of sweepers avail-able, and their inability to cover any greater area of streets.

The purpose of the trip was merely to secure a short rest. It is probable that some such trip will be taken by members of the Council about once a month.

It had been intended to hold this meeting this morning, but owing to private business some of the members could not be present, and

Fred Valdez Held to Answer fo Alleged Burglary-A Squirrel's Taste for Soap Discloses Somebody's Misdeed.

A boy with a taste for jam and a squirrel with an equal failing for coap is the meat of a Redondo tale of re-cent date, which Gen. Johnston Jones relates. Gen. Jones, representing the District Attorney's office, was sent to the beach Saturday to prosecute a nineteen-year-old half-breed, named Fred Valdez, for burglay. He found there a young fellow with a King Cole appetite and a palate that might belonged in the throat of the most fastidious epicurean. Valdez has just served a thirty-day Valdez has just served a thirty-day sentence in the County Jail for petty larceny. On July 23, he happeend to saunter into the back yard of a Mrs. Ferguson's residence at Redondo, whereupon he spied, among other good things, several glasses of jelly basking in the bright sun to gain color and flavor. His appetite conquered. He feasted sumptuously and departed. When Mrs. Ferguson put in an appearance, there went up a wall for the jelly and goodles that had departed. It was not a great while before a constable was in search of the boy, who was soon apprehended and boy, who was soon apprehended and put to fasting in punishment for his

It was brought out at the preliminary examination on Saturday that, after he left the Ferguson house, young Valdez made a casual call at the home of R. C. Davis. The family was away. Valdez went in through a back window. His appetite was still along. Digging around in the pantry he set forth a good-sized meal. Jams and jellles again preponderated. Tamales served as entrés. He cleaned up everything save the dishes and the tamales. Then he looked about the house for a bit, and finally concluded to take along with him when cluded to take along with him when he went a lot of jewelry and a cake of soap.

His headquarters in the neighborhood were a big haystack. As soon as he reached home, he buried his jewels and his soap in the sand not far from the stack, and then retired, only to be nabbed in a short time.

Now comes a bit of animal detective work by the constable. Enter squirrel, with an alkali taste. It scents the soap, digs it out from the sand, nibbles it to almost nothing and retires, leaving the buried treasure fully exposed to view. Two or three days afterward an honest Redondo farmer takes a turn about his hay stack and finds the jewelry, which is gathered in to furnish evidence to bring to justice the boy whose tastes were too esthetic for his limited means.

At his examination on Saturday Vaidez was held to answer to the Superior Court without ball. He is thought by the District Attorney to be an escape from the Whittler State School.

EL MONTE EPISODE.

Why Did William Snoddy Wield

Piece of Pipe? A heavy contingent of El Monte grangers filed into the Township Court yesterday morning to testify in the case of the people against William Snoddy. Snoddy was up for examination on a charge of assault with deadly weapon. The person alleged to have been attacked was George Laing who is a well-borer, living at No. 1600 Toberman avenue.

have been attacked was George Laing, who is a well-borer, living at No. 1603 Toberman avenue.

The difficulty occurred August 15, about the middle of the afternoon. The first witness to mount the stand yesterday was the lacerated prosecuting winess, Laing. He testified that when he arrived at his wells two miles north of El Monte, on the date mentioned, he found that some of his tools had been borrowed by employes at Snoddy's pumping plant, some distance away. Accompanied by a friend, he started after them in a buggy. Just as he entered the engine shed, he said he met Snoddy, and accosted him with a cordial "How-ye-do," when he was surprised by a very cold reception, and some such heated reply as "You black———, git out of here: I told yer ter keep away from here."

Then he was struck over the head with something that completely dazed him, and he tumbled over "limp as a rag." After he had fallen, he says he was struck again on the hip. This brought him to his senses enough to make him start back to his buggy, some paces away. Otherwise, he remembers nothing. He wasn't even sure that Snoddy hit him, but testified that he thought his assailant surely was Snoddy, because he saw nobody else about. He then drove at once to his home in the city and called in two doctors to dress his wounds, one of which was a laceration on the back of the head, caused by a blow from a plece of iron pipe. Laing was in bed ten days.

Two or three witnesses were then put on the stand, who were in the shed at the time of the difficulty, although Laing had not seen them. A man by the name of Proudy said that he saw Laing enter and heard Snoddy tell him to leave, whereupon Laing raised his hand to his hip as if to shoot. At this juncture, Proudy testified, he fied to the rear of the shed and took a comfortable refuge behind a big boiler for safety. He feared danger ond bullets, he said. Whether Laing was hit he did not know, but he saw Snoddy pick up a plece of pipe.

"Sam" Maxwell, Snoddy's engineer, was also in the shed. He said he didn't a valuable grain crop alleged to be due him as owner of certain lands near Fullerton, according to an agreement giving him a fourth for rental.

Arreck, in the complaint filed yesterday, alleges that, under terms of his lease, he is entitled to the land until November 1, 1899. The crop consists of grain and straw. Harvesting is not yet over, and he states that he is entitled to three-fourths of the crop, atthough a division has not yet been made. The unthrashed grain and the straw of the thrashed still lie in the field. Meyer is the owner of a large number of sheep, hogs and other live stock, which since August 14, it is alleged, have trespassed and were by Meyer driven upon the leased land, to the great detriment of the grain and the straw. The sheep are said to be especially destructive. It is averred that although their owner has been notified of their trespassing, he will do nothing to prevent it. The grain is valued at $5000, and the straw at $1000. Arreck sets forth in his complaint that Meyer is insolvent and unable to respond in damages for any judgment, wherefore he prays for an injunction restraining Meyer from allowing his stock to trespass, in addition to the damages already asked for. Judge Fitzgerald yesterday morning granted the injunction as prayed for.

reached the city yesterday. Crawford had insured his stable for $1000, the policy to be in force at noon of May 2, 1897. The company's traveling agent prepared and signed the policy on May 1, and left it with the local agent to hand to Crawford, who could not be found, and it was deposited in a bank. The next day was Sunday, and no attempt was made to deliver the policy or to collect the premium. During the night the stable was destroyed by fire. On the following day Crawford tendered payment of the premium, but it would not be accepted, nor would the bank deliver over the policy.

The company admitted underwriting the policy, but alleged that it had only been made out provisionally, in the hope that Crawford could be induced to accept it, although he had declined to do so previously. The lower court determined that the acts of defendant's agents amounted to an execution of the policy, and bound the company. Certain testimony, however, according to the Supreme Court, was improperly introduced, that threw the preponderance of evidence in favor of Crawford. A new trial was therefore ordered.

While in pursuit of some sort of duty on the housetop, she says she stepped into the skylight, and fell with an awful thud to a cement floor twenty feet below. She alleges that the building was carelessly and negligently built, and that the owners were well aware that the skylight was unprotected, yet permitted it to remain so.

In consequence of her fall, Mrs. Collier sets forth that she was struck with paralysis in striking the floor, receiving severe, painful and dangerous bruises as well. She says that she has been incapacitated from working for eleven months now and has been compelled to spend $255 for medical attendance and other aid. Besides $10,000 for damages, she therefore seeks to recover $825.

KILLED BY HIS WIFE.

TOM COOK PUNISHED FOR FLA GRANT MARITAL INFIDELITY.

Leaves His Wife at Night to Spen-Hours With a Servant Girl-The Wronged Wife Shoots Her Husband Through the Brain.

Tom Cook, the terror of the Orange county peat lands, is dead. He was shot between the eyes about 4 o'clock resterday morning by his wife, Katie-cook. Death was the vengeance she inflicted for the wrongs that have been neeped upon her by a shameless husband for the past eight years.

For years Cook has been known as a dead shot, and has never been known to go unarmed. Eight or ten years ag opened fire on his brother, because remonstrated with for consort. ing with bad women ason after the death of his first wife. Last October he became engaged in a quarrel with Jack Grigsby, a neighbor, with whom he had had a difficulty, and shot him down in cold blood. Through a technicality he escaped the gallows for this offense. Since that time he has been living on his ranch in the peat lands, about ten miles west of Santa Ana.

About So 'clock yesterday morning a telephone message from Westminster notified the Orange county Sheriff that Tom Cook had been killed. The news soon spread, and in less than half an hour fully fifty residents of Santa Ana were on their way to the Cook ranch, the belief being general that one of the Grigsby brothers had returned from Arizona. Whither the family had removed after the killing of Jack Grigsby, to pay up an old score. Upon arrival, however, it was learned that Cook had been killed by his wife.

They had quarreled during the night. Mrs. Cook had remonstrated with her husband against alleged intimacy between himself and the servant girl, Mabel Moody, who came to work for the family only about two weeks ago. Cook finally admitted his guilt, according to the story of Mrs. Cook, and then defied his wife to do her worst, saying that if she did not like his style she knew what she could do. For a week or ten days Cook had been sleeping on a mat on the west side of the room near a door through which a passage led to the room occupied by Miss Moody. In the evening his wife had entreated him to reform. They talked until after 16 o'clock, the wife remonstrating with him and erying over him in an endeavor to get him to forsake his evil ways, but without success. ing with bad women soon after the death of his first wife. Last October over him in an endeavor to get him to forsake his evil ways, but without success.

Finally, Mrs. Cook went to bed alone, Cook throwing himself down on the cot next to the doorway leading to the room occupied by Miss Moody. According to Mrs. Cook's story, her husband, shortly after Il o'clock, quietly left his cot, passing into Miss Moody's room. About 3 o'clock in the morning he returned to his cot. The wife again begged him to quit his life of shame. Put off with a brutal retort, she e-came desperate. She returned to her bed for a time, but only to brood over her wrongs. With not an hour's sleep for five long nights, and the specter of her husband's infidelity before her, she could no longer control herself. As the gray dawn came she sprang from her bed and taking Cook's revolver from la bureau drawer—the weapon with which Jack Grigsby was killed—she tiptoed to her husband's side and, holding the weapon within an inch of his right eye, pulled the trigger. Cook never moved a muscle. The ball entered the head at the upper corner of the right eye, and death was apparently instantaneous. The features show the utmost repose.

Immediately after the shooting, Mrs. Cook went to the room of Miss Moody and remonstrated with her for the part it is alleged she had played in the affair. By this time the only other person in the house, James Barton, had appeared upon the scene. He was sent to a neighbor with the news that Cook had been killed. From there a message was sent to the nearest telephone station, and later Sheriff Lacy was notified. Mrs. Cook admits that she killed her husband, but she claims that she was driven to desperation, and there story.

Cook was taken to Santa Ana by Deputy Coroner George Smith and Cook was taken to Santa Ana by Deputy Coroner George Smith and placed in the morgue et Smith & Sons' undertking parlors, where the inquest will be held this morning at 10 o'clock. Mrs. Cook accompanied Sheriff Lacy to town, and is now imprisoned in the Orange County Jail. She was arraigned yesterday afternoon before Justice of the Peace Wilson, and her preliminary examination set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Kannard Fined for Disturbing Mrs. Harwell's Peace.

Mrs. Harwell's Peace.

J. H. Kannard, a house-cleaner, went to Mrs. W. A. Harwell's restaurant at No. 633 South Main street, yesterday morning to collect $2, which he alleged Mrs. Harwell owed his wife for cooking. Mrs. Harwell denied that she was indebted to the woman whatever. During the discussion which ensued Kannard became very violent, and berated Mrs. Harwell in a bolsterous manner. A man who rooms in the rated Mrs. Harwell in a boisterous manner. A man who rooms in the house eventually came to Mrs. Harwell's assistance and ordered kannard to leave the premises. He refused to go, and showed fight. In the melee Mrs. Harwell was hit in the face. Officer Hubbard put an end to hostilities by marching Kannard off to jail.

hostilities by marching Kannerd off to jail.

The prisoner pleaded guilty to the charge of disturbing the peace, when arraigned in the Police Court yesterday afternoon. He admitted having had a drink, but denied that he was drunk. He tried to justify his conduct by stating that Mrs. Herwell cast espersions on the character of his wife. He begged the mercy of the court on the grounds that he would lose his job and his wife and children would suffer if he were sent to jail, and he had no money to pay a fine.

Mrs. Harwell, after hearing this appeal, offered to withdraw her complaint, but as the prisoner had already pleaded guilty. Justice Austin refused to stop the proceedings. A fine of $5 was imposed, payable September 1, the defendant being meantime released on his own recognizance.

small suburban towns, have been so changed that he will have the supervision of the new office. Corporal Clark from the main recruiting station in the Builard Block, will be detailed to assist him.

The term of service for those enlisted will expire on June 30, 1901, and at the end of that time transportation to the place of enlistment will be furnished. The men must all be able-bodied, of good character and strong physique, and must be over 18 and under 35 years of age. All applicants under 21 will have to secure the consent of their parents or guardian.

Those who go from the Los Angeles office will have a chance to serve under Capt. W. G. Schreiber, who was formerly lieutenant-colonel of the Seventh Regiment, N.G.C. It is intended that Capt. Lieut. O. E. Hunt, in charge of the main office, reported a material increase in the number of applications for enlistment yesterday, and with the two offices in working order, recruiting during the next few days is expected to be brisk.

Collina Didn't Hitch.

T. J. Collins let his horse stand unhitched, at Fourth and Spring streets, yesterday while he stepped into a florist's store to collect a little bill. He did not state whether he was successful in his collection, when arraigned in the Police Court for violating the hitching ordinance, but Police Court Clerk Stockwell promptly collected $2 from him. The wastchful Officer Richards got his eye on Collins's unhitched horse and arrested Collins, who pleaded ignorance of the ordinance governing the hitching of horses on the business streets.

Benedict suffered severely from scurry while in the arctic regions, and yet is afflicted with an ugly sore on the neck, resultant from the disease. He was a member of the expedition headed by ex-Police Captain Loomis and Detective Moffatt. The entire party has now returned, their search for gold having proved unsuccessful. Benedict had a splendid record as a police officer, and it may be that he will endeavor to be reappointed.

Complaint reached the police detectives that he was repeating the offense, consequently a second warrant for his arrest was issued, and served yesterday by Special Officer S. J. McKenzie. Scotto was released on bail pending trial September 1.

The Cruel Knife!

It is absolutely useless to expect : aurgical operation to cure cancer, or any other blood disease. The cruelty of such treatment is illustrated in the alarming number of deaths which re-sult from it. The disease is in the blood, and hence can not be cut out. Nine times out of ten the surgeon's knife only hastens death.

My son had a most malignant Cancer, for which the doctors said an operation was the

OFFICE OF THE TIMES.

Los Angeles, Aug. 28, 1899.
FARMERS HAVE BANK ACCOUNTS. The prosperous conditions of the farmers is happily illustrated by of the farmers is happily illustrated by the fact that they are generally carrying bank books about in their pockets, and discharging their obligations with bank checks. The American Banker says: "It is stated that the farmers of the West are using checks to a much larger extent than ever before. We might have assumed this from the large number of new bank accounts which the return of good times has made possible. The check is a better bank currency than the bank bill. This is the instrument the bank bill. This is the instrument the bank bill. This is the instrument which possesses the true "homing quality." People hoard gold, greenbacks and bank bills, but they don't hoard checks. It is thought that the extension of the use of the check in the wheat districts of the West will this season sensibly economize the employment of currency."

COMMERCIAL. GENERAL BUSINESS CONDI-TIONS. From advance sheets sent out by the New York Commercial it appears that activity in all industries continues at an increased pace, and that prices on all sorts of merchandise, raw material and finished products are steady to strong. A quite general condition is more attention paid to real estate, and increased activity in building. These are the places where dull times first show themselves in a time of depression, and the last where activity resumes sway. But it is sure to reach there in time. When people have made large gains in speculation or in regular business, a large portion of these gains are salted away where moth and rust do not corrupt, in a piece of good realty. pears that activity in all industries

The cotton market is affected to depression by Henry Nell's estimate that the crop now being harvested will be the largest ever gathered, and may reach 12,000,000 bales.

At St. Louis it is reported that shoe houses were never busier than at present, jobbers being taxed to their utmost to fill orders. This is also true of the manufacturers, who have run throughout the summer without the customary shut-down. The advance in leather necessarily calls for a corresponding advance in the price of the manufactured shoe.

So great is the rush in all kinds of factories that labor is scarce to such a degree that in some places women are taken in places usually held by men in the mechanical operations.

CHEAP APPLES. An Agricultural Department report says that many Vir-ginia growers, who are not fully ad-vised as to the likelihood of a short crop, have made contracts for their Al bemarle pippin crops at $2 a barrel in the orchard, which is a low price. Four years ago the going price was $4, says Bradstreet's, and there were scores of orchard-owners who sold their crops in the lump for from $5000 to $15,000. These apples go almost entirely to Europe, and buyers who have made contracts at the low figure of $2 a barrel will make a handsome profit, as Albemarle pippins usually bring from $8 to $10 a barrel in Liverpool CATTLE SCARCE. It is said that not one herd of cattle is left in either Nevada or Utah, and that the supply of beef cattle on most of the western ranges has been considerably depleted.

COTTON COMBINE. It is reported that the principal print-cloth mills of Fall River contemplate combining their interests with something like $135,000,000 as capital. If the combine is formed a saving of $1,000,000 a year will be the result, it is said. The effect of this report has been to stiffen the prices on cotton fabrics in spite of the prospect of cheap cotton.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

GROWING INDUSTRIES. The thir-teenth annual report of the Massachusetts Bureau of Labor shows that the State had 4701 factories in 1898, as aganist 4695 in 1897 and 1026 in 1886, when the first report was made. The value of goods made and work done during 1898 in the nine leading industries scheduled was $865.619.185, made up as follows: Boots and shoes, $131,-162,578; carpetings, $5,932,370; cotton goods, $99,986.069; leather, $25,907,780; machines and machinery, $34,797,770; metals and metallic goods, 40,426,780; paper and paper goods, $28,635,537; woolen goods, $30,359,533; worsted goods, $25,664,722. LOCAL PRODUCE MARKETS.

LOS ANGELES MARKETS. LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28, 1899.
Poultry is merely nominal today, with no lemand. Buyers are operating with some care, although the market is pretty well leaned up.

Eggs are firm for all kinds, local bringing 22 cents straight, and 18 cents being the ruling price for eastern. Ranch are scarce, but do not advance because there is a free supply of eastern here.

Butter is easy, and this is somewhat of an anomaly, for San Francisco is firm at as high as 60 cents per square for strictly gilt-edge.

The trouble here is that retailers are shifting eastern prints at 23¼ cents per pound freely, and a little onto tub at 23 cents, makes it slow for local at nearly 5 cents yound more money. per pound more money.

Cheese is very firm at quotations for eastern and local.

Potatoes are very week.

Potatoes are very weak. Probably nothing on the market sells at over $1.40 per cental in one to five-sack lots. Pretty good spuds are sold at $1.25 per cental—that is pretty good as the market goes. The trouble is that those shipped in are not ripe, and they melt down in a day or two. Packed in sacks and piled up in a car they become more or less bruised. The fact is, they should be handled in boxes, so as to take the weight of of sack off of the others. To go into a commission house and see them sort spuds reminds one of March, when spuds stored for months are being sorted over.

Beans are still dull and weak at about the inside range of prices.
Wheat and its products are all steadier.
Barley and its products are weak. There were about three hundred and fifty thousand sacks of barley grown along the sea between lanta Monica and Long Beach and reaching niand nearly to the city boundary. No one soked for the tenth part of this in so dry a rear. The farmers sold it for 90 to 55 cents are cental. firm at quoted rates. The top figure Shares and Money.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 28.—There was a marked falling-off of interest in railroad stocks today, compared with that prevailing last week. Interest shirtled into the industrial specialties, and a number of these were marked up in a feverish and irregular manner. The general list was maintained with difficulty, and a slight flurry in call money in the last hour carried prices, with a few exceptions of strength, below last night's level. In the final hardening movement on covering by shorts, some of the specialties and a few obscure railroad stocks rose to top level. This made the closing of the market firm, but the majority of standard stocks show net losses. An influential factor in the hesitating and doubtful tone and speculation was the renewed anxiety over the money-market outlook caused by Saturday's bank statement. Call money was quite stiffly held at 3 per cent. all day, and was marked above that in the last hour, possibly not without manipulation. But the fact remains that the present low stage of surplus reserves of the New York clearinghouse banks keeps the financial world keenly observant, and in a somewhat uneasy frame of mind. Professions of confidence that the West is amply provided with funds to finance the coming crop movement without calling on New York do not altogether avail in the face of the condition of the local banks. Neither does the suggestion that the local companies have large available funds which do not figure in clearinghouse banking reserves, although both of these explanations have undoubted force. The buying for London account which has served to sustain some stocks recently was missed. There were upward movements of importance today in the Tobacco stocks, Manhattan, Metropolitan, Sugar and some of the iron and steel stocks, the latter under the influence of a declaration of the first dividend on the Republic Steel preferred of 1½ per cent., called quarterly. Sugar closed at 154%. American express jumped ten points over Saturday's price

Grain and Produce. [ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]
CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—For a good part of the morning wheat was firm at a slight advance in prices. Liverpool showed but a small opening decline, and more than recovered this before the close there. A more important consideration was the world's small shipments, and more particularly those from Russia, whose large exports last week were an important factor in causing a downward turn to the market. Russia this week reported shipments of 499,000 bushels, the total world's shipments being 6,739,000 bushels. Northwest receipts were somewhat larger, but not enough so to bearishly affect the market. Shorts were the best buyers at the opening weeker that this, among the control of the market by proceed the control of the market by proceed the control of the market by processionals and elevator people this season, which caused a temporary decline. September opened 4,0% on the market by processionals and elevator people this season, which caused a temporary decline. September opened 4,0% on the control of 23% (27%). The decline was stopped by the statement that the visible supply had decreased 1,517,000 bushels, and the slackening in selling pressure coming at a time when shorts were covering, prices advanced again, September to 70% (671), and December to 72. These proved the high points of the day. A period of comparative inactivity followed, but before noon the market turned decidedly weak on the reported arrival of 300 cars of new wheat at Duluth, and by much more favorable thrashing returns from the Northwest. Elevator people and professional bears were not slow to take advantage of this, and pounded the market persistently from then until the close. December declined to 71% and September to 70. There was a tendency on the part of shorts to cover at those figures, and a slight rally occurred, but the general feeling was weak to the close. September closed 4 70701% bid, and December at 72 bid. Corn was weak for September, but steady for December and May. September closed % lower, December the close September ports was unchanged and lard and ribs 7½c higher.

Mrs. Stone Visits Her and Talks of the Poet.

[Woman's Journal:] I made several visits at different times to the daughter of Robert Burns, who lived and died but a few miles from Glasgow. The first time that I visited her, as she did not hear distinctly, she mistook my name for that of Mrs. Stowe, and she welcomed me as though it were an angel come to visit her. But, as quickly as I could, I undecelved her, and told her that I was by no means the great Mrs. Stowe, in whose fame and good works I rejoiced as much as she did. "Oh, well," she said, "there's nothing in a name; I dare say you are just as good," and she treated me to a sip of "Mountain Dew," of which I had never before heard, and which I politely declined, as it was no more nor less than a sip of whisky unadulterated, to which the old Scotch people are much accustomed, and of which they are very fond.

After a talk about Mrs. Stowe and "Uncle Tom's Cabin," at which her eyes brightened and showed that she was acquainted with eyery detail of the story from first to last, we drifted into talk about her renowned father, Robert Burns. Her daughter, who was was sitting with us, said: "I know of no poem that he ever wrote of which, if you repeated or read one verse, mother would not follow it with the repetition of the next."

At length she asked me: "Madam, which of his poems do you think the greatest that he ever wrote of which, if you repeated or read one verse, mother would not choose one as the greatest that he ever wrote" I replied that I could not choose one as the greatest, many were so beautiful, and I mentioned his address "To Mary in Heaven," "To a Daisy," "Highland Mary," and many others. I told her that my brother was a great lover of Burns, and that I had heard him repeat amny of Burns's poems, when I was a little child I remember one that he used often to repeat to his children, "To a Louse on a Lady's Bonnet:" but I thought the one which I the Poet.

was a little child I remember one that he used often to repeat to his children, "To a Louse on a Lady's Bonnet;" but I thought the one which I liked the best, and which seemed really the greatest, was "A Man's a Man For a' That." At this her eyes flashed like a flame, and she clapped her hands. "Ah, yes," she exclaimed, "ah, yes, that's the greatest; that's himself," and she reneated:

that's the greatest; that's himself," and she repeated:
As come it will, for a' that,
That sense and worth o'er all the earth May bear the gree, and a' that,
For a' that, and a, that,
'Tis coming yet, for a' that.
When men to man the world o'er Shall brithers be, for a' that.
Her enthuslasm was better tha nany elocution recitation that I ever heard. I realized the prophecy as coming true in reading of the great "anti-expansion" meeting in Chicago, and in Jane Addam's noble speech "On the Meaning of Peace."

I visited the dear old lady two of three times when I was in Scotland afterward. She gave me her picture, which I have yet, but the last time I was there she had gone. I often think of her, as a dear soul, whom I shall see and recognize again. Burns has always been dearer o me tfor that visit to his daughter, as has every place associated in any way with him, his cottage at Ayr, his monument at Dumfries, made by a woman, and on which is inscribed the poem which his daughter repeated.

PASADENA.

THE GOVERNOR'S EXPLANATION OF A POLITICAL MYSTERY.

How a Batch of Pasadena Document Became Lost in the Shuffe-New Telephone Manager-Work of the Shakespeare Club Mapped Out for the Coming Season,

PASADENA, Aug. 28.—[Regular Correspondbnoe.] On July 3, some time before the recent vacancy in the Superior Court judgeship was filled by the appointment of Judge Fitzgerald, a strong claim for the selection of G. A.
Gibbs, Esq., of Pasadena for the position was forwarded to the Governor from this city, sand thereby hangs a mystery. The petition for Attorney Gibbs was signed by every lawyer in Pasadena, regardless of political affiliations, and was accompanied by letters from distinguished men of the county. That the receipt of the petition and accompanying documents was not even acknowledged occaresioned some surprise, and the explanation has just come to hand. A letter has been received from the Governor stating that the documents were lost in the shuffle; that they were remailed to Sacramento from Los Anregies and pigeon-holed there, so that he did not see them till August 10, "which he deeply regrets under the circumstances."
There probably will be two Pasadena candidates for a nomination for Superior Court Judge in the next Republican County Convention. Judge York's friends will put had Jovavard for another term and are already shaping things. It is possible that City Attorney Wright, who has twice before been brought before the convention for this hir, he decides to run, and his friends quadict that the will, Lawyer Gibbs says he will stay out of it this time and work for Wright, waiting for a later opportunity for another presentation of his claims.

Sparks have been flying recently between the Pasadena telephone exchange and the general manager's office in Los Angeles, as a result of which R. S. Allen has resigned his position as manager of the Pasadena exchange, which he had held for four years. He is succeeded by Charles Reeves, who has been employed in construction work here, with Miss Jessie Tuttle as oashier. SHAKESPEARE CLUB.

The Shakespeare Club, Pasadena's strongest organization of women, have arranged their order of events for the coming season, which will open October 7 with a reunion club tea. A week later will be "Pasadena Day," when the government and needs of the city will be discussed; October 21 there will be a parliamentary drill and club tea; October 31, Halloween reception; November 4, "California Day," with a discussion of the State government; November 18, "National Day," when expansion and other national issues will be tackled; December 2, "International Day," and a consideration of the relations between the nations of the world; December 16, "Fin de Siecle Day;" January 13, reviews of and talk about books; January 13, reviews of and talk about books; January 27, devoted to the fine arts and glimpses of the old masters; February 17, "Newspaper Day," when the "value and place of the newspaper" will be discussed; February 22, Washington's Birthéay reception from 3 to 10 p.m.; March 3, "William Morris Day;" March 17, "Essay Day;" April 7, "Health Day;" April 33, Shakespay;" May 16, "Houskeepers' Day;" June 2, "The Evolution of Woman;" June 16, "The Best Way to Spend Our Holidays." The work, will include many meetines for drill. A "Current Events Class," led by Mrs. Chapin, and he usual number of social functions will be nterspersed.

It looks as though much of the water de-eloped in Pasadena this summer will be sold o outside parties, despite Pasadena's need reloped in Pasadena this summer will be sold to outside parties, despite Pasadena's need of it: A Santa Barbara capitalist has become nterested in the Pinney-Weymouth well, and sith new sinews of war fitty additional inches of water will be developed, for all of which towns lower than Pasadena are figuring. It is also stated that Garvanza is negotiating for the purchase of the water developed by Robert McAdam on his place near the Sheep Corral Springs in the Arroyo Seco. With his slectric pumping plant he gets a steady stream of fifteen inches without apparently diminishing the supply. He has offered to sell his whole plant and rights to the West Side Water Company in Pasadena, or deliver it to them at their Orange Grove reservoir at $300 per inch. The directors of the company have taken no action on his proposition, and now the water-seekers of Garvanza are said to be trying to get ahead of the company in securing this supply, with the further idea of tunneling after some of the supplies now going into the Pasadena pipes, which might be diverted. The directors of the company helleve they can protect themselves against predatory tunnels, however.

Alleged Horse-thief Arrested—Passer of a Bad Check Arrested.

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 23.—[Regular Correspondence.] Charles Suttor was arrested by Constable Myers in Los Angeles Saturday evening, and charged with stealing a horse from Henry Bower of Santa Monica. It is alleged that Suttor visited Bower's home on Santa Monica Heights Saturday afternoon during his absence in Los Angeles, and took the horse from the barn, tied him to his wagon, and dreve to Los Angeles, and took the horse from the barn, tied him to his wagon, and dreve to Los Angeles, and took the animal. When Bower returned home he immediately notified Justice Guidinger, and a complaint was sworn out for Suttor's arrest. Bower accompanied the Constable to Los Angeles, and they visited Suttor's home near Rosedale Cemetery, on Washington street. As soon as the alleged thief saw Bower entering his gate he is said to have seized a gun, but upon discovering that he was accompanied by an officer, he dropped the weapon and was placed under arrest. In company with his wife Suttor was brought back to Santa Monica and arraigned before Justice Guidinger. His preliminary hearing is set for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Suttor was locked in the Santa Monica jail Saturday night, and on Sunday he was taken to Los Angeles, where he succeeded in obtaining bail in the sum of $500.

It is alleged that the horse stolen was formerly owned by Suttor; that he sold it to Bower during the dull season when the price of hay was high, and now that the horse is fattened he wants it back, claiming that he had no right to sell the animal, as it belonged to his wife.

City Marshal Dodson drove a four-in-hand coaching party over it Sunday, and returned by the inland route. The distance hy ways of the coast. Is route. The distance by way of the coast is about sixteen miles. Part of the way from San Pedro there has been a good road for several years, but there was much of it which was practically impassable for ve-hicles. The ranchmen along the route have hicles. The ranchmen along the route have done a large amount of work on it. In order to make it good for wagon travel, however, it is said that about $1500 worth of improvements should me made on it. There are along the road many places of sharp ascent and descent where it needs to be graded. The view from the road is picturesque. The ocean is in sight nearly all the way. The question of the improvement of the coast road from San Fedro to Redondo has frequently been discussed in connection with the bridging of the channel at Ballona. The latter would make it possible at low tide to drive from Redondo to Santa Monica, thereby affording a coast drive from San Pedro all the way to Santa Monica.

Retailing Lubricating Oil Buena Park Trouble.

Buena Park Trouble.

ANAHEIM, Aug. 28.—[Regular Correspondence.] A good deal of discussion has been created by the development of the fact that for some time past the retailing of lubricating oil has been practiced at the city power-house, thus putting the city in competition with retail business concerns. The City Trustees do not deny that the sale of oil has been permitted, the chairman of the Finance Committee alleging when the fact was made public that he gave orders and received pay for all the oil sold. The City Clerk is on record as saying that no oil account existed excepting with the parties from whom the town purchased. Since making this statement he has given another in which he says that when he first spoke of oil he meant crude and not lubricating oil. A retail account of the latter does exist, he affirms, but is buried within reports of the Finance Committee and does not show on the books as separate item.

Grant was on hand as usual Saturday morning. He had fed and groomed his horses, and at 6:30 o'clock took a drink in the saloen with the bartender. To the bartender Grant said that he would go and get his breakfast, as he desired to get an early start to Oxnard. Grant made frequent trips to country towns with supplies. After leaving the saloon he walked down Main street and was last seen at a plies. After leaving the saloon he-walked down Main street and was last seen at a saloon on West Main street, where he took as drink. An unsuccessful search has been made-about the city, especially in the willows along the Ventura River, for Grant. The Cerf company sent a man to Santa Barbara, yesterday to look for him. Grant's accounts with his employes are straight, and he has no debts. He is unmarried and has no relatives here.

SANTA BARBARA, Aug. 28.—[Regular Correspondence.] Capt. Waters, the owner of San Miguel Island, will have to erect several rew sheep corrais upon the island. By a curious movement of the sand the old corrais are all buried. Four years ago these corrais were perfectly clear, but the sand, carried fully two miles by the constant winds that blow on the channel, have completely covered them. During the past summer the movement of sand has been particularly rapid and in the cañons. It is possible other winds may move the sands from the corrals to some other place, but the process will be a long one.

STAMPING OUT SMALLPOX IN THE PRESIDIO DISTRICT.

Government Establishes a Detention Camp on the Rio Grande to Prevent the Introduction of Yel-low Fever from Mexico-Oyster Farming-Chinese Pest.

SAN ANTONIO (Tex.,) Aug. 27.-[Regular Correspondence.] That the United States government is determined to stamp out smallpox and to guard against further introduction of erament is determined to stamp out smallpox and to guard against further introduction of the terrible disease from Mexico is evidenced by the decisive action of the officers of the Marine Hospital Service. Under orders from Surseon-General Wyman of the Morine Hospital Service at Washington, guards have been placed along the river in Presidio county, Tex., where smallpox has been raging, to assist in the effort to stamp out the disease. These guards are under the direction of Dr. Lea Hume of the Marine Hospital Service, who is himself located on the Rio Grande. He estimates the number of cases thus far as 700 on the American and 1500 on the Mexican side, and says the mortality has been very great. The guards are supplied with vaccine from the national vaccine establishment at Washington. They are skilled in the work. Every man, woman or child in the Presidio district not previously vaccinated will be now. Unless the disease is checked fears are entertained that it will devastate the river counties. There are now six guards on the frontier.

The government is also taking special precautions against yellow fever. Dr. Hamilton who has charge of the United States Marine Hospital Service at Laredo, acting under instructions from Washington, has prepared a detention camp near the bridge of the Mexican National Railroad at that place, where, at the expense of the government, passengers from any of the infected districts of Mexicomay be detained in conformity with the quarantine regulations established by the government. First to the establishment of such a camp the trains from Mexico were backed across the bridge, the suspected persons unloaded in Mexico and compelled to look out for themselves.

I. P. Kibbe, State Fish and Oyster Commissioner, Hon. J. D. Mitchell and County Judge M. S. Mahon, who recently made an investigation of all the oyster reefs in the Matagorda waters off the Texas coast, have made the following report: Of the oysters on the Old Town reef, 75 per cent, were dead; the oysters on the Pelacios River were alive, but scattered; on Mad Island and Shell Island reefs, 75 per cent. dead; Tiger Island reef, oysters alive, but in the milk for the second time this year. The beds of the Tiger Island oyster Company, along the Peninsula shore, are all right, but no marketable oysters were found in the west end of Esperitus Sonto Bay. The commission believes that the oysters were killd by the large amount of fresh water that was forced into the bays during the June floods, and estimates that the crop this year will not be over 25 per cent. of that secured a year ago.

It is customary for the Chinese inspectors or the custome officers to enter the car to see that the men are provided with proper certificates, and also to secure a look at them for the purpose of recognition, in case they try to refenter the country after a brief sojourn in Mexico. A few days ago, when a carload of Chinese came in on the Southern Pacific from San Francisco, the inspectors, Charles Hehan and J. D. A Very Serious Matter to Thos

These may seem trifling matters of detail to the Anglo-Saxon mind, but to the subtler and more casuistical Greek intellect they loom large as issues of dent of comparative religion, myth and folklore they are as interesting in their revelations of mental processes as they are to the theologian in their ecclesiastical aspect.

For the benefit of Protestant or non church-going readers it will be neces sary to begin at the beginning. In the Greek as well as in the Roman Catholic church it is customary for the faithful to make the sign of the cross by man ual gesture on various public and pri-vate occasions, as before and after prayer and in conferring baptism, lessing, etc. Among homan Catho lics the most usual form of this rite practiced by the clergy and laity alike is to place the thumb or the forefinger on the forehead, saying, "In the name of the Father," on the breast, saying, "and of the Son," on the left preast, saying, "and of the Holy Ghost," on the right shoulder, with the concluding word "Amen." The sign is also made in the air by the officiating overgyman at baptisms, at the consecration of the emplems in the mass and of blessings.

GREEK SIGN OF THE CROSS.

In the Orthodox Greek Church, which is the state religion of Russia, bishops and priests make the sign of the cross with the thumb, the index finger and middle finger united. But a powerful sect named the Raskoniks, who claim to be more orthodox than the "orthodox," and who number some 25,000,000 adherents, priests in making it with the thumb bent toward the little finger, while the index and middle finger closely united, are pointed heavenward. On this point, and on the other point as to how the baptismal font should be circumambulated, they have been condemned by the Russian Primate at St. Petersburg. The Russian Primate at St. Petersburg. The Russian Primate to the Greek Patriarch and the Holy Synod at Constantinople, just as every Roman Catholic Primate is subordinate to the Pope and the Vatican. To Patriarch and synod, accordingly, the Raskoniks have addressed themselves. Hitherto the Greek church has refrained from interfering in local Russian religious disputes. Now it can no longer hesitate. Should it decide that the matters in dispute involve essential questions of dogma, and not mere questions of discipline, then it must condemn the Raskoniks. This condemnation will result in the mightiest religious convulsion ever known in Russia.

THE SUNWISE MOVEMENT. GREEK SIGN OF THE CROSS.

THE SUNWISE MOVEMENT

And this brings us to the second point at issue, the circumambulation of the baptismal font. The members of the orthodox church, both in Greece and in Russia, have always gone round the font to the left. The Raskoniks insist in going around to the right, that is, in keeping the font always to the right of the perambulating procession.

THE SCOTCH DEISUL. From the East Mr. Simpson turned his attention to the West. He found as the sunwise direction. To perform the circuit in this manner was to bring down a blessing; to perform it in the opposite manner, or as to Celtic word ran, widdershins, or withershins, was to invoke a curse. Witches were said to approach sacred places and advance toward the demons whom they served in widdershins fashion; that is, in opposition to what at one time must have been an established duty—i. e., to perform all acts in accordance with the sun's apparent motion.

It was sunwise that the Celts approached a concentrated place, and all their religious processions moved in that direction. Martin, in his descpription of the "Western Islands of Scotland" (1702.) mentions the common practice of carrying fires deisul, or sunwise, around persons or property in order to preserve them from the malignant influence. For the same reason boatmen rowed their boats round sunwise before proceeding in the direct course. To insure happiness in marriage the bride was conducted deisul toward her future spouse, and it was in the same manner that a corpse was conveyed to the grave or funeral pyre.

In short, while this custom of deisul endured among the Highlanders there seem to have been few events in their

in the air by the officiating dergyman at baptisms, at the consecration of the emblems in the mass and at blessings, always in the direction of the object of the ceremonial. St. Basil refers the custom to apostolic times, and it is certain that it was a familiar one by the beginning of the third century, for Tertullian mentions it.

In the Orthodox Greek Church, which

More is concealed here than meets the eye of the careless observer. For the orthodox Greek perambulation is contrary to the usage of all other Ar-yan races. From the time of the sun worshipers has come the practice of going around an object with the right shoulder to the center, which is con-sidered the sunwise direction.

This custom is especially prevalent in all parts of India where it is

tion, as with the left hand to the center, is the rule at death ceremonies. It is on other occasions productive of evil.

Now, among the Semite, both Moslems and Jews, the custom is generally that of going around with the left side turned to the center. William Simpson, in his book on the "Prayer Wheel," gives the tentative explanation that as in India the left hand to the center is the rule in consecution. tion that as in India the left hand to the center is the rule in connection with the dead, the Semite custom may have become the stereotyped rule from the practice of worshiping at tombs, which is known to be still a marked feature of Moslem faith. The 'Kaaba, at Mecca, for example, is built in the semblance of a huge tomb, and the Moslem performs his pradakshina around it in the reverse direction.

his attention to the West. He found an extraordinary parallel to the pradakshina in the Scotch highlands, where a custom now well-nigh extinct was once extremely prevalent. It was called the deisul. It consisted in going three times around a person or an object in a rightwise direction—that is, keeping that person or object always on the right side. This was considered, as it is considered all over the world, as the sunwise direction. To perform the circuit in this manner was to bring down a blessing; to perform it in the lives at which it was not performed. But the most common rite was that whose object was to call down blessings upon an individual by making a sunwise circuit around him. Scott affords numerous instances in his novels. Thus, he describes how the Highland doctor came when Waverley had been wounded: "He observed great ceremony-sin approaching Edwa."1, and, though our hero was writhing with pain, would not proceed to any operation which might assuage it until he had perambulated his couch three times, moving from east to west, according to the course of the sun. This, which was called 'making the deisul,' both the leech and his assistants seemed to consider as a matter of the last importance to the accomplishment of a cure." And in a note he adds: "To go round a person in the opposite direction, or withershins, is unlucky, and a sort of incantation."

SURVIVALS OF THE DEISUL. Miss Constance F. Gordon-Cummings, in her book "From the Hebrides to the in her book "From the Hebrides to the Himalayas," has recorded some survivals of the deisul rite even in our times. One is at Inverness. A long hill, looking not unlike a boat turned upside down and known as the Fairles' Hill, was some years ago made into a modern cemetery, with winding walks leading to the graves. It so chanced that the turn in the principal path went sunwise, but the portion of the cemetery in which the poor were buried could be reached by a shorter cut. At first this route was taken, but it was observed that this path turned in the opposite direction to what is sunwise, and this raised such an outery that the poor are now taken by the longer way to save them from the dire results of being carried "withershins" to the grave.

The bonfires which in many parts of Great Britain and the European continent are still lighted on St. John's eve and other occasions, furnish more analogies. It is frequently the custom for the celebrants to dance around them in a sunwise direction. Blazing torches, barrels or disks are carried around a field or a town in similar fashion in order to bless it and keep it from harm during the ensuing season. A quaint survival in the very heart of English civilization is that of "passing the bottle sunwise" at table, which is insisted upon by all good topers. Perhaps another may be found in the well-nigh universal gambler's habit of turning a chair or walking round it in order to bring about a change of luck. It may be noted that this turning is always sunwise. In Ireland, when any one falls, he springs up and turns about three times to the right.

Fender Saves a Child.

The first practical test of the new fenders recently placed on a few of the Los Angeles Railway Company's cars, was made yesterday on the Pico Heights line when a little boy attempted to cross the track in front of a rapidly moving car. The child's intentions were not discovered by the motorman until it was too late to stop the car in time to aviod a collision. Happly the fender performed the work cut out for it, and picked the little fellow up, as neatly as could have been done with a human arm. Outside of a few superficial bruises and a bad scare, the boy was none the worse for his experience. But for the fender, his young life would probably have been crushed out. Room for more fenders.

Allison has dark hair, brown eyes, wore dark knee pants and a blue blouse.

Fire in a Phonograph Parlor.
